CHS football team showing its mettle

By DAVID LELAND

CARMEL HIGH School head football coach Craig Johnston has accomplished in one year what some feared could never be done: he has instilled a winning attitude in his players.

Indeed, when Johnston took over the reins from Jeff Wright in April of 1989, he inherited a 0-19 record and a lot of frustration and discouragement.

This year, the team is 5-0-1, with its three most important games waiting in the wings – Palma, King City and Pacific Grove.

"We're not going to win every game we play, but at least we're competitive," says Johnston, who instituted a rigorous weight-training and fitness regime during the summer months. "We wanted speed rather than absolute strength."

His tactics worked.

Witness junior halfback Tobin Leslie, whose 6.2-yard average (seven TDs), and 498 yards in 80 carries makes him ninth in rushing in the Mission Trail Athletic League. (Leslie is also third in the league in receiving, with 18 catches for 194 yards, a 10.8-yard average, and two TDs, and fifth in the league in scoring, with nine TDs and 54 points.)

And then there's senior fullback Mark Fanderl, whose 6.4-yard average and 416 yards in 65 carries (and five TDs), rates him 13th in the league. Not bad considering that Fanderl was a substitute player until senior fullback/linebacker Dan Kurz was injured.

"You never know how many things will come together, there's so many things that can happen," says Johnston, who quarterbacked his St. Paul's High School team in Santa Fe Springs to a 51-3 record and led the Cal Poly SLO football squad to a Division II national title in 1980.

"He's been (passing) over 60 percent for most of the season," says Johnston, referring to Bertolucci having completed 56 passes in 95 attempts for 776 yards and five TDs. "I think that's really helped us; he's been able to make snap decisions.

"Last year he would throw the ball into a crowd – this year he is more patient."

Johnston says that he credits last year's senior players for exiting with heads held high.

"They did the most important thing, they changed the attitude," he explains. "These guys are keeping it going."

With a little luck, the proverbial baton will be passed along to lowerclassmen come June, with only about 50 percent of the successful Padres' team composed of seniors.

Assisting Johnston with his duties are Mark Spindler, defensive line; Bill Swift, offensive line; Matteo MaCaluso, running backs and linebackers; and Mike Kelly, receivers, defensive backs and the kicking team.

WITHOUT A doubt, the team's toughest opponent, Palma High School (6-0, 4-0 in league play), surfaces this Friday, Oct 26, at 8 p.m. in Salinas.

"I've been anticipating this game ever since I took this job," says Johnston, who has been scouting the opposition. "We are playing the best in a game that is crucial to both teams."

Johnston said his team must beat Palma "if we have any aspirations at all about getting to the playoffs." The last time the Padres made the playoffs was 1983.

To say that beating perennial league powerhouse Palma represents a monumental task would be an understatement. The team has outscored its opponents 212-36, including a 34-0 trouncing of a 4-1-1 King City team last Friday.

Last year, the Padres put up a good fight but lost.

"It's nice to know that we have a better chance," says Johnston, adding that Palma basically plays conservative football.

Johnston adds that his team is preparing for Palma the way it would any other game.

"Every week we're throwing in little wrinkles; we just have to keep blocking and tackling as well as we're doing," he says, adding that steady basics will accomplish more than tricky plays. "Plays don't win football games, football players do."

Water committee recommends new hook-up moratorium

By FRANK GEORGE

A MONTEREY Peninsula Water Management District board subcommittee has presented a water allocation report that recommends imposing a moratorium on new water hookups.

The ad-hoc water allocation committee that prepared the report consists of board chairman Dick Heuer and directors Dale Hekhuis and Jim Hughes. In an eight-page report released at the board's Oct. 22 meeting, the subcommittee recommended adopting a 16,744 acre feet water supply option for the district.

In the report, the three directors submitted findings that show average annual district consumption is 16,974 acre feet, which would creat a deficit of 230 acre feet. These findings justify an ordinance preventing new connections "until the supply can be increased or the demand further reduced to offset the deficit," the report reads.

The board will consider the new ordinance at a special meeting at the Steinbeck Forum in the Monterey Conference Center adjacent to the Doubletree Inn in Monterey at 7 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 5. A hearing on the new ordinance will be held at the meeting.

Heuer said the board has the option of taking action on the moratorium at the Nov. 5 meeting, but the session will probably function as a "conceptual review."

Heuer said, however, that the 16,744 acre feet allocation itself will probably be adopted at the meeting. Water district ordinances must be presented to the public twice before they can be adopted.

If the moratorium gains acceptance from the directors at the Nov. 5 meeting, the first reading will take place at the Nov. 26 meeting and it will be formally approved at a Dec. 2 hearing, Heuer said.

The ordinance, however, will be nullified when the district opens up new wells in Seaside and Del Rey Oaks, or significant rains end the rationing.

According to district geohydrologist Joe Oliver, the Seaside facility should start producing water for district users early next summer. The Del Rey Oaks project is still in the testing stage and a tapping date cannot be set.

The district estimates the Seaside well will produce an extra 1,000 acre feet of water per year, while the Del Rey Oaks facility could add an additional 200 acre feet annually.

The new water supply option will cost the district $638,000 annually with a one-time capital cost of $443,000. The price includes a 3-percent increase in the district surcharge on Cal-Am bills. This computes to a 54-cent increase on the average water bill.

According to the allocation report, if any district city or unincorporated area achieves additional reduction from their allotment, 50 percent of the savings will be rebated toward growth in that city or area.

Also in the report, the directors recommended setting aside $212,000 yearly with a capital cost of $407,700 for the Carmel River steelhead population. The fish have been threatened by the prolonged drought.

District staff had estimated $508,900 in annual costs and $2.2 million in capital funding would be needed to reinstate a successful fish run.

Nevertheless, the directors said an expensive permanent fish ladder recommended by the staff would not be necessary if a new dam is built on the river. The saved funds will instead go to rescuing the fish, transfering them to a rearing habitat, and preventing them from being stranded.

In other business, district general manager Jim Cofer said in his report to the board that an incident involving the theft of fire hydrant water is being investigated. Water was illegally taken from a hydrant, filling a water truck. Cofer said the staff may have to bring a report on the incident to the board for enforcement action.

At press time, further details on the theft could not be obtained.

In other business, Cofer said the district office at 187 Eldorado St. in Monterey will be open to the public during the lunch hour on a trial basis. Hekhuis said the staff should open the office during lunch hours for "awhile" to give people time to find out that it's now open.

Also on the agenda, Heuer reported on the status of the wilderness land exchange clause in Senate Bill S2784. One hundred acres of Cal-Am land would be swapped for 50 acres of wilderness on the Carmel River at the proposed site for the New Los Padres Dam.

The river land has been designated wild and scenic, creating the need for an act of Congress to legalize the trade.

In the first week of this month, Heuer, Cofer and Hekhuis lobbied California Sen. Alan Cranston in Washington, D.C. on the exchange. The Democratic senator has not yet endorsed the swap, but he said he would contact Heuer on the matter within a couple of days. As of press time, Heuer had not been contacted by Cranston.

"Right now, he probably has more important things to think about – at least I hope he does," Heuer said, referring to the current budget battle going on in Congress.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Letters to the editor are welcome. Views on all matters are acceptable, following the guidelines of good taste. While there is no limit on length, brevity is encouraged. How is 'safety' spelled?

Dear Editor:

The California Crime Index, which lists the offenses of homicide, forcible rape, robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, and motor vehicle theft, showed that statewide there was a 7.6 percent increase in these crimes in 1989 when compared to 1988.

However, it is important to realize that the Monterey County Sheriff's Department reported that the same category of crimes were down almost 13 percent in the unincorporated areas.

The Sheriff's Department also reported a 5.5 percent decrease in the FBI crime index total. Violent crimes were down 28 percent, aggravated assaults were down 33 percent, and the total of property crimes was down 6.5 percent.

It is clear that we have a very effective Sheriff's Department. We must support this efficient team. My vote is for safety, and safety is spelled "Bud Cook."

Sincere thanks

Dear Editor:

The Carmel Public Library Foundation is extremely grateful for your very kind and detailed editorial on Oct. 11. It explained and supported the foundation's campaign to raise funds for books for the Harrison Memorial Library. And we thank you again for the full-page of publicity in the Oct. 18 edition.

The library's need is clear and urgent, but without your generous assistance we would be much less able to make that need manifest to all the local people we feel sure will be glad to help. The moderation and dignity with which you have rpresented our case will provide us with a model for our continuing efforts.

Again our most sincere thanks.

A bad idea

Dear Editor:

I think our Hatton Canyon Freeway is a bad idea. it will only attract more and more traffic and increase the already dangerous Carmel Valley traffic situation.

We could, however, build an elevated freeway there. Motorists could drive from the high school over Carmel Valley Road, get a lovely view of the hills and the crossroads and continue directly to Los Angeles. This makes more sense.

We also have a problem in town, as you know. How about removing all the buildings on Ocean Avenue? This would solve the parking problem.

Then we could widen to four lines Ocean Avenue from the high school directly to the beach. This is the least we can do for them and it should make our valued tourists deliriously happy — at least.

American Red Cross to hold blood drive in Carmel Valley

THE AMERICAN Red Cross, Carmel chapter, will hold a blood drive in Carmel Valley.

The drive will be held from 3 to 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 25 at the Carmel Valley Community Chapel, located at Paseo Hondo at Village Drive in the valley.

For more information call 624-6921.

Acreage added to Garland Park

ESCROW HAS closed and the Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District now holds title to an additional 179 acres adjacent to the 3,374-acre Garland Ranch Park.

The new park land, formerly owned by the Condon family, long-time Carmel Valley residents, is the first land acquisition in the state using new habitat conservation funding under Proposition 117.

The site, located at the east end of Garzas Road, above the Trail and Saddle Club and bordering the de Dampierre addition, is made up primarily of oak woodland with patches of chaparral and open grassy areas. The Smith's blue butterfly, a federally endangered species, can also be found residing on the property. Presently, one walking trail exists through the area.

Funding for the Condon addition was provided by the Proposition 117 ballot initiative approved by voters in June of 1990. A coalition of groups led by the Planning and Conservation League of Sacramento, and the Mountain Lion Preservation Foundation, sponsored and promoted the state-wide initiative to prohibit the trophy hunting of mountain lions and to provide funds for wildlife protection.

Supervisor seeking applicants to library task force

FIFTH DISTRICT Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman is seeking qualified applicants to serve on the newly created Ad-Hoc Citizen's Task Force on Library Services.

This Task Force will study library services and costs county-wide.

Anyone who is interested in library services and resides in the unincorporated areas of the 5th District is encouraged to send a letter stating their desire to serve, including their home address and daytime phone number, to the office of Supervisor Strasser Kauffman at 1200 Aguajito Road, Suite 001, Monterey.

Repetition — LIFE, May 12, 1972

I TURNED the magazine over. I gasped!

There on the cover was pictured two soldiers living the horrors of war, the very thing that hangs over the heads of the world today. My mind raced back over the wars my generation has lived through.

My whole being recoiled at the thought...no, not again! Memory started my fingers to thinking about knitting for the soldiers in the First World War. My hands remembered the coarseness of the dun-colored wool, the long knitting needles that taught a young girl to knit. My hands relaxed as I reminded myself that in this time of sophisticated wars, there would be no need of hand-made articles. No hands would be needed to roll Red Cross bandages. Now machines would do it faster.

As I looked again at the picture, I felt the love that the soldier who carried his friend felt. I felt the muscles in his legs grow tired, as his must have. Fatigue comes with stress.

My mind struggled and wondered...wasn't life more than oil? Here in our cozy homes, would conservation be better than the heat of the desert? Was that why I was suddenly uncomfortably warm? My teeth felt the grit of the wind-blown sand. And my soul cried out with Israel of old, "Let my people go!"

Suddenly, I feel drained, the helplessness of it leaves me limp, like a worn-out dishrag. I want to reach out and hold something, anything at all, to stop the mad rush to disaster. I want to shout, "Stop. Please talk!"

All is disjointed, like an old doll whose elastic ligaments can no longer hold its arms, legs or head in place.

The sense of helplessness is overwhelming. At this point I can find no answer but needless repetition.

Crews starting to clear vegetation from riverbed

By FRANK GEORGE

USING CHAINSAWS and handtools, California Conservation Corps crews began clearing the Carmel River bed of newly grown vegetation on Oct. 22.

The Monterey Peninsula Water Management District board decided the trees and bushes now thriving in the moist river bed will clog the channel when it rains, causing flooding and erosion.

The district appropriated $3,000 in district funds for the task at the Oct. 22 water board meeting. The action came as a result of an Oct. 18 water study session in Carmel Valley.

In answer to some fears of channel clear-cutting, district engineer Andrew Bell assured a packed house at the study session held at the Carmel Valley Trail and Saddle Club they only plan to clear a passage for the water.

He said crews will run the branches, stumps and leaves through a chipping machine and deposit the debris up on the banks, making good mulch for the soil. The chips are the size of chunks that fly from an ax when someone is chopping a tree down, Bell said.

Aside from the CCC crews, Bell said a group from the California Department of Correction's Gavilan Camp near Soledad Correctional Facility will hack away at the vegetation. The Gavilan Camp also donated the chipping machine.

The chore is expected to take two months at a cost of no more than $3,000 dollars. Bell said the money will go toward tools, equipment and supplies. All the labor, except district hours, will be volunteered, and the project will be executed at no additional cost to area water users.

The workers will concentrate on two sections of the river:

– An area stretching from the narrows at Scarlett Road to immediately upstream from Boronda Road Bridge.

– An area reaching from Carmel Valley Village to Moore's Pond, which is just upstream from Esquiline Road (Rosie's) Bridge.

At the Oct. 18 meeting, the directors fielded questions from riverbank property owners. Some wondered what would happen if their neighbors chose not to cooperate with the project.

Responding for the board, Bell said only one landowner questioned the clearing, but the owner later agreed to cooperate when he learned no bulldozers would be used on the channel bed.

On Monday, Bell said he received go-aheads from 40 of the 130 parcel owners involved. He said the crews are not going to cut anywhere where they don't have permission. In that event, they will skip that area and move upstream to the next available area.

Other concerns were addressed at the Oct. 18 meeting. Ron Hess of the state Department of Fish and Game said the department was worried about the removal of a snag at Moore's Pond. He said trees that fall across a pond slow down the water and are actually beneficial for fish.

Bell said there is plenty of good coverage over the pond, and the cutters may only remove part of the tree trunk.

Other protests were heard at the Oct. 22 water board meeting, where the project got the nod. Patrick Green of Carmel Valley objected to the project, saying the directors were not considering the river's steelhead population. He said the fish require stumps and the like for spawning purposes.

"Our view is, we're working with the Department of Fish and Game on this, and we're guided by their views," Hekhuis said. He said if state game wardens have a problem with clearing of any of the areas, the water district will respond to their concerns.

(For more information on the vegetation clearing see the water column by Henrietta Stern in this week's issue.)

By FRANK GEORGE

AFTER SEVEN years of political setbacks, developer Craig McFarland's seawall was unanimously approved by the planning commission on Oct. 17.

The final hurdle for the project stemmed from the commission's concern over the strength of an 80-foot section of the wall's foundation, which rests on sand rather than bedrock.

McFarland wants to chemically inject the sand beneath this section, but members of the commission questioned the hardening technique at the Aug. 22 meeting.

Samples of the treated sand had crumbled in the commissioner's hands at the meeting.

Recent engineering tests at the site, which is located on the northernmost end of Carmel Beach next to Pescadero Creek and the 10th green at Pebble Beach, showed that pressure grouted sand remains rock hard when underground.

Another of the commission's concerns dealt with by McFarland's engineers had to do with the wall's facing. The 24-foot high, 220-foot long wall is composed of stacked fiberglass-filled sandbags hastily assembled by the applicant after the intense winter storms of 1982-83.

Residents and city officials complained about the unnatural appearance of the structure, and wording in a 1987 environmental impact report suggested the construction of a new concrete wall faced with granite.

The new facing will be attached to the front of the existing "sandbag" structure. The commission's approval of the design and the coastal permit is pending the installation of small planters along the face and top of the structure.

City planning director Diane White said the plants skirting along the top will hopefully droop down the face of the wall, resulting in a naturally pleasing appearance.

Landscaper Richard Murray said storm-hardy acacia redolens and other varieties will pour over the edge of the structure, and Monterey cypresses and another acacia species will frame the face. He added the acacias will reduce the scale of the wall and the cypresses should reduce it's hardship.

The wall was built in 1983 with permits from the city and the California Coastal Commission, pending geotechnical, engineering and aesthetic improvements.

McFarland said he spent more than $80,000 in the process on consultants, permits, testing and legal fees. He said he could have settled the dispute years ago by installing the landscaping that was finally approved last week.

However, McFarland said the planting and foundation work cannot begin until next August when the proper weather and tidal conditions exist.

At the Oct. 17 meeting, the commission also deliberated on the liability question in the event of catastrophic destruction of the wall.

McFarland's attorney, Myron Etienne, argued for a more limited commitment on his client's part, but the commissioners opted to hand him full liability, as the planning department staff had recommended.

The commissioners also decided McFarland must again consult the city before any reconstruction after a disaster.

In October 1985, McFarland first appeared before the planning commission after the city determined the portion of the wall which rests on sand was unsafe. The commission then decided the changed nature of wave refraction by the wall and the loss of beach enjoyment necessitated an EIR.

The applicant appealed this decision to the city council, and the councilmembers upheld the ruling in December 1985.

The EIR was prepared and reviewed by the commission in February 1988, and in May of this year, a large storage tank filled with sodium silicate for the pressure grouting rolled off the road into Pescadero Canyon.

Several hundred gallons of the solution were successfully cleaned up by McFarland prior to last week's approval.

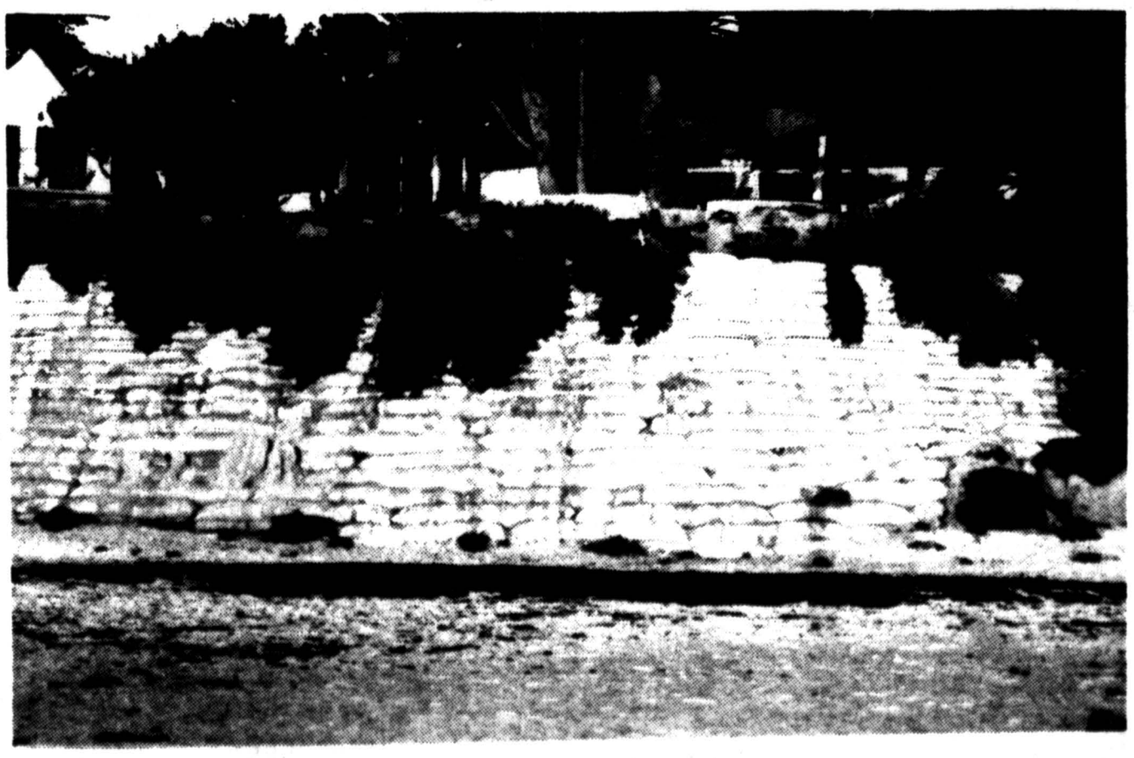
IN OTHER action Oct. 17, the commission again unanimously denied a rezone permit for former mayor Clint Eastwood. According to Commissioner Philip Coniglio, the second denial was merely a formality.

The commissioners previously denied Eastwood's request on Sept. 26. The actor-director wants to redesignate his San Carlos Street building, which rests in a resident-commercial zone and borderlines the central-commercial district.

As a compromise, Eastwood wants to partially fill the new building with resident-serving businesses. Eastwood's Hog's Breath and other commercial interests sit on the same parcel, but they're in the central-commercial district.

At the Sept. 26 meeting, Carmel Development Co. owner Alan Williams said the building that once sat on the site had been designated service-commercial. He didn't realize the permit went with the property rather than the structure when they razed the old building, he said.

The rezone denial will be appealed to the city council.



A PLAN for Carmel developer Craig McFarland's seawall, a source of controversy for the past few years, has been given conditional approval by the Carmel Planning Commission. The seawall is located on the north end of Carmel Beach near the 10th hole at the links at Pebble Beach. (Frank George photo.)

Ghouls and goblins to parade in Carmel

PEOPLE OF Carmel, be afraid...be very afraid.

Ghouls, goblins, creatures of the night, and a few assorted princesses thrown in for good measure, will be parading through our village on Oct. 31 – Halloween!

The devilish event begins at 4 p.m., with children assembling in the parking lot of Sunset Center located at San Carlos and Ninth Avenue. Children may start gathering as early as 3:30 p.m., but must be in line by 3:50 p.m. in order to participate in the parade. Anyone arriving late will have to meet the parade at the botttom of Ocean Avenue in the refreshment area.

The City of Carmel-by-the-Sea requests that any child 7 years of age or under be accompanied by an adult. Adults are encouraged to join in the fun by wearing a costume as well (perhaps a Ninja Turtle?)

The children will be separated by grade level for the parade. This is done for the convenience of those not accompanied by a parent. Families may walk together if they desire. No bicycles or skateboards will be allowed.

In the event of rain, the parade will be cancelled.

Development considered on lot with city's oldest home

By FRANK GEORGE

FURTHER DEVELOPMENT on a lot containing Carmel's oldest home was considered by the planning commission at its Oct. 24 meeting.

The Carmel Pine Cone was unable to obtain the commission's ruling at press time (meetings are held Wednesday's after press time), but some background information on the application was available.

The "kernel" of the house, located on San Antonio Street between Second and Fourth avenues, was built in 1847 by the Murphy family, which has a long and storied history in Monterey County.

The building was later occupied by Carmel civic leader Frank Powers. Powers and J. Frank Devendorf were instrumental in the incorporation of the city in 1916.

Dr. Orville Golub of Los Angeles has owned the building since 1973. Golub and his wife want to build another home on the acre-and-a-third parcel the house rests on.

The house has a long corridor in the front, with seven widows and seven old-fashioned exterior shutters. The ancient volcanic rock chimney on the south side of the building is one of the few indications of its antiquity.

The building originally had board-and-batten siding, but sand from Carmel Beach seeped through the walls, and one of the home's early occupants stuccoed the outside of the building, giving it an adobe appearance.

In a letter to city planning director Diane White, Golub said he has no plans to demolish the old house.

The Golubs also own the Henry Hill house to the immediate north of the village's original home, but Golub said he wants to build a new home amongst the ancient, towering euculyptus trees and the acacias that shade and shroud the old lot.

Although present local and coastal codes prohibit additional subdivision in the zone the 19th-century house sits in, Golub had received city council approval for an adjacent building in 1975. At that time though, the Golubs weren't sure what they were going to do.

"Now we know what we want to do," Golub said in the letter. "But we apparently waited so long the rules of the game have changed."

In ruling on the permit, the commission has several options they can take. The planning department staff recommends the commissioners select one of three options in their Oct. 24 meeting packet.

One option for the commission would be to recognize the old house as a main dwelling on the property and build the new house. However this decision would create a non-conformity, and the city is not supposed to take an action that would allow a non-conforming situation.

A second choice would be to amend the village preservation district rules. The village preservation district codes are little-known and rarely consulted.

The district was designed to protect significant early village homes. The commission may seek to alter these codes to prevent the ancient structure from being demolished.

A third option recommended by staff involves composing a specific plan that would allow a new house to be built on the property.

When weighing precious stones, there are about 142 carats in an ounce.

Youngsters 'hitting the books' at Park Branch library

SIX DAYS a week you will find children being carried, toddling, or striding boldly into the Youth Services Department at Harrison Memorial Library in Carmel.

Some come alone or with friends after school to do homework and ask for assistance in looking up materials needed for essays and special projects. Others come to read for enjoyment, or be read to by parents and babysitters while relaxing in the comfortable beanbag chairs and other youth–sized furniture. Usually a huddle of older youth are exploring geography, history and science using the Apple II GS computer donated last year by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Rotary. Books are the main reason they come to the library and more than 31,000 books a year are circulated from Youth Services.

Youth Services Department, headed by Librarian Sandy Hames and staffed by her capable crew including Mame Reid, Barbara Hill, Kimberly Young, Virida Harbridge, and Anita Fernandes, is located at Harrison Library Park Branch on the corner of Sixth and Mission. Most of its youthful users, from pre-schoolers to adolescents, call it The Children's, or even The Kid's Library. From staff concern to comfortable decor, this room is clearly built for young people.

Programs in the Children's Library include morning and evening story times, craft activities, weekend and summer programs. Since Youth Services moved from the Main Library at Ocean and Lincoln three years ago, attendance at Children's Programs has increased 100 per cent.

Morning story times, followed by book-related crafts, are popular with the mothers of pre-schoolers, as are evening Bedtime Stories for children over three years of age each Tuesday and Thursday evening at 7. Many parents bring children dressed in "jammies" and can carry them off to bed when story time ends, or stay and participate in making crafts that relate to the books read. Recently, tired youngsters "flew" off to bed with paper butterflies they made after a reading of several books featuring butterflies.

HML is the only public library in the Carmel Unified School District, and is also heavily used by the students at Robert Louis Stevenson upper and lower schools. Several tutors use the library as a place to meet and work with their students. Library staff encourage children to read and do homework. Park Branch is the only public building in Carmel open to all children, six days a week, free of charge, where they can enjoy educational opportunities.

Youth Services Department is open Monday, Wednesday & Friday 9:15-6 and Tuesday and Thursday 9:15-9, Saturday 9:15-6.

Youths over 14 are encouraged to use both Harrison Main and Park Branch. Many young people daily use reference materials and books which they cannot find at school. Books are loaned to area schools by request.

For example, if a fourth-grade class at Tularcitos School is having a "Bird Unit," books on birds are gathered by the librarians and loaned to the school. Libraries increasingly provide materials that schools cannot afford, and also offer a friendly, educational environment to children who may have no one at home after school.

Youth Services Department programs encourage more children to get to know the libraby. Recent activities included a visit from animals being trained for the movies. During Fire Prevention Week, Carmel firefighters let kids explore a fire truck and ask questions.

ACTIVITIES AND NEEDS

What is most needed in the Children's Library? "Books, books and more books," says Harrison Memorial Library Director Margaret Pelikan. Children's books range from attractive, stimulating picture books for pre-schoolers to wonderful books introducing new concepts and reinforcing ideas discussed at school, to books which inspire creativity and imagination. New and updated science and math books, and encyclopedias are much needed by youth for school projects, and to answer their own questions. Biographies are greatly valued for inspirational examples and as source books for essays.

The recently launched Carmel Public Library Foundation's Book Program aims to meet some of the need for books. A brochure describing gift opportunities has been sent to every library patron. Additional information is available at public service desks at both branches. Although some books cost more and some cost less, the Carmel Public Library Foundation and its Book Program Committee, chaired by Philo K. Holland of Pebble Beach, agree that acknowledgement to contributors will be one bookplate for every $50 gift to the Book Program. This allows for costs of book preservation, cataloging materials and protective covers.

Contributors may make a dedication to In Honor or In Memory of a special person or occasion. CPLF Book Program Committee members are expecting lots of dedications to children as the holiday season approaches.

Most children are now being exposed to computers at school and home. The availaility of educational programs on the computer enables children to further improve these skills and to use productive software.

"No Nintendo," says Sandy Hames. "We feel learning can be fun, and some of the great color educational programs attract a lot of use, especially from the middle school age group."

There are many other educational programs Youth Services could purchase with new contributions.

There is a need for contributions to purchase crafts materials, puppets, puzzles and other program materials. Larger gifts are sought to underwrite the Summer Reading Program or a year of Story Time. The foundation is seeking one special individual or family who will make a substantial gift which will be acknowledged by naming the Youth Services Department after than donor.

The Carmel City Council has approved the HML Trustees' request to name the Park Branch, Youth Services, Local History and Reference Departments after major donors. Details regarding these gifts are available by contacting Maria Gitin, the executive director of the Carmel Public Library Foundation.

"Fundamental to the future of our community is an investment in our children today," says Philo Holland. "The Children's Library accomplishes just that."

BOOK PROGRAM - ANNUAL FUND

Contributions to the Book Program will be spent within the next year on the purchase of books and equipment for the library.

ENDOWMENT FUND

For those who wish to make a larger gift, perhaps to honor family members or a cherished individual, there are meaningful opportunities to name collections, rooms, the Local History department and the library's Park Branch through the fund. Gifts to the endowment will be invested and interest only spent.

FOUNDATION OPERATING FUND

CPLF is a professionally staffed organization housed in Park Branch. First-year expenses include office equipment and public relations materials. Unrestricted contributions to cover these costs are sought.

For further information on gifts to Harrison Memorial Library, Maria Gitin may be contacted at the CPLF office at Park Branch. Telephone 624-2811.

How to have a safer Halloween

HALLOWEEN TRICK-OR-TREATING can be more fun if basic safety precautions are followed, according to the California State Automobile Association (AAA).

Because the return to Standard Time on October 28 brings early darkness, motorists are advised to watch out for children, especially during the holiday.

To ensure that children will have a safer Halloween, CSAA has issued the following tips:

– Put reflective tape on costumes and trick–or–treat bags.

During dusk and darkness, carry a lighted flashlight.

– Use make–up instead of masks which can prevent children from seeing oncoming traffic.
– If masks are worn, check to make sure that eyeholes are large enough for clear vision.
– Hats, masks and wigs should fit well, and not slip down over the eyes.
– Remove masks when crossing streets.
– Avoid long costumes or high heels, which might cause a child to trip or fall.
– Be sure that an adult accompanies small children on Halloween.

Some hints for traffic safety:

– Cross streets only at intersections.
– Look in all directions before crossing the street.
– Obey all traffic signals.
– If there is no sidewalk, walk on the shoulder of the road facing traffic.

CSAA is the AAA-affiliated auto club serving more than 3 million members in northern and central California and the state of Nevada.

UNSPEAKABLE DESECRATION

Horrors! Unspeakable desecration of the beauty of our front door! Must our home be robbed of its personality, its name displaced by a number, as is done in our most modern penitentiaries? Worst of all, when we call the butcher and ask him to deliver our meat to No. 13 Humpback Avenue, he will know right where we live. Have we no privacy? How much nicer to say: "and please deliver it to Underbrush Lodge. Yes. Oh, you'll know it all right. You know where the biggest bump in the road is? Well it's two houses beyond that. And there's a big pine tree in front with a white stripe on it. Yes, that's it. Hurry will you? Goodbye."

INTERSECTION REMAINS A STIGMA

Radical redesign of the intersection of Carmel Valley and Robinson Canyon roads to accommodate the Carmel Valley Ranch development is turning into a mission impossible.

Phil Coniglio picked for Landlord-Tenant Committee

By FRANK GEORGE

CARMEL BUSINESSMAN Phil Coniglio, who also sits on the Carmel Planning Commission, is the first appointee to Carmel's new Landlord-Tenant Committee.

Coniglio qualified for the committee because he rents the building that houses his business on the corner of Ocean and Mission, Mediterranean Market. Rules for the new group say a planning commisioner must sit on the 12-member committee.

Coniglio's father, Phil Sr., is his landlord and he says he couldn't make a go of it in Carmel otherwise.

"If we had to pay the going rent, Mediterranean Market as it now exists would be history," Coniglio said. He said his father charges one-third the amount other Ocean Avenue landlords charge.

Few of Carmel's original businesses are left on Ocean Avenue, according to Coniglio. He said the city's clientele has changed from resident-oriented to tourist-oriehted. Locals now shop at out-of-town shopping malls rather than Carmel's business district, he said.

The new committee member also said escalating business rents are chasing so-called mom and pop stores right out of the village.

"We're not unique anymore," Coniglio said, referring to Carmel. He said the city once sheltered many locally owned and operated specialty shops.

Patrons can now go to any mall to get many of the things Carmel offers, Coniglio said, adding that only corporations needing a tax write-off can afford to put a new shop in the village.

On the other hand, local entrepreneur Paul Laub doesn't agree with Coniglio's views. Laub would twice qualify for the committee, as he is both a landlord and tenant in the business district.

"How is it possible a corporation would make more money by having a tax loss than actually making money?" Laub said. He said the district's biggest difficulty is the city's control over the tenant mix, and its attempts to grant permits to businesses it deems best for Carmel.

Laub said local government controls forced out resident-serving businesses by restricting their ability to sell a wide range of products. Business owners are not allowed to adapt to changing market tastes, Laub said.

"So the supply is not allowed to meet the new demand."

Councilwoman Barbara Brooks said it is premature for her to respond to Laub's comments, saying she will comment when the new committee comes up with recommendations.

The committee's purpose is to serve as a forum for dialogue between landlords and tenants in the commercial district. City councilmembers will each choose two candidates for the group, and one councilmember will sit on the committee.

Mayor Jean Grace said the council is selecting prospects for the group and they will present them to her prior to the Nov. 6 council meeting.

Committee membership will consist of an equal amount of tenants, property owners and property managers. Fifty percent of the group must be residents of Carmel.

The council has not yet decided when and where the committee will meet, but the terms will last until June 1. At that time, the group will present a report on their findings to the council.

"Thanks for Caring"

COMING OF AGE

By Jennifer Dyer

The View From Bardason Field

WHEN CARMEL High first opened its doors in 1940, the view from the football field was a simple celebration of untouched space: artichoke fields stretching to the sea.

Fifty years later, the view is still spectacular: the vista embraces Carmel's fight against conformity. Twisted cypresses and the Fish Ranch give the Padres one of the most scenic backdrops for football in California.

Even in the years when the football team was not competitive, you could look across the 50-yard line at the ridge that comprises the southern edge of Carmel Valley to take your mind off the scoreboard. The changes that have been wrought during a half a century of time-outs and touchdowns have been many and varied.

In 1940, Mission Fields didn't exist. Neither did The Crossroads or The Barnyard shopping centers or any of the development at the mouth of Carmel Valley. To name just a few, South Carmel Hills, Carmel Knolls, and Carmel Rancho Center weren't even sparks in an ambitious developer's eye. Imagine what the land looked like then: pure, undeveloped, sweeping hills and pressed valleys, as it had 500 years before. Carmel High has seen plenty of changes in its time.

In its own celebration of Carmel High's rich history, a committee of devoted persons has materialized. Its brainchild is CHS's 50th anniversary celebration. The event promises to be something special, a "just once" extravaganza that encompasses the first 50 years at Carmel High.

Saturday, Nov. 10, is the day set for the Padres' Homecoming Game as well as the 50th anniversary celebration. The Carmel varsity football team will play Pacific Grove at 2 p.m. on its own Bardason field for "The Shoe," a traditional trophy that symbolizes the friendly rivalry between the two schools. Before the game, a parade will be held on Ocean Avenue when students display Homecoming floats and alumni participate. At halftime at the game, past Homecoming queens will be presented in vintage cars along with past football players and students. Two footballs signed by both teams will be raffled off as a fund-raiser to paint the school. After the game, a fully catered reception by the Padre parents will be held in the school's gym with every class's graduation pictures on display. To end the day, a dance will be held in the gym for alumni and students alike.

Patricia Beebe, Carmel High's dynamic new vice principal, is the director of the anniversary celebration. "The highlight of the whole 50th anniversary celebration," she says, "will be an event in the spring which will include a a golf tournament, a barbecue, a gala reunion, and other activities."

Key committee members involved in the process of contacting anyone involved with CHS in the last 50 years are Cherie Evans, Susie Faia, Lou Langley, Karen Marasco, Chuck Phillips, Sandra Shoemaker, and Kim Spindler. A column will run in the San Francisco Examiner to inform Bay Area residents of the event.

"We're really anxious to involve as many alumni and friends as possible," Mrs. Beebe commented. "But it's difficult getting out all the information. If anyone knows someone involved with the high school, please contact us so we can send them an invitation." For more information, please contact Patricia Beebe at 624-1821 or Karen Marasco at 624-1015.

The 50th anniversary celebration will be a success. It's an interesting thought to keep in mind that 50 years from now, at the 100th anniversary celebration, the graduating class of 1991 will be around 68 years of age. I'm sure we'll look exactly the same, and the view from the football field will not have changed either.

COLLEGE NIGHT at CHS is Nov. 8 in the gym. More than 75 colleges will be represented. All the University of California and California State College campuses, as well as many Ivy League, California independent, and private universities will be present. Representatives from almost every state will answer questions from 7 to 9 p.m. All students and parents are welcome.

POLICE LOG

A crime dog in training?

A BURGLER was interrupted mid-burgle when the people whose Carmel home the suspect was robbing returned sooner than he had expected, scaring him off.

The intruder had only gotten as far as stealing a pillow case, an item commonly used by thieves to hold their stolen merchandise.

After walking their dog the evening of Thursday, Oct. 18, the victims returned to their home located in the area of San Carlos and Camino del Monte, unaware that anything unusual was occurring. However, the couple's smart pooch immediately sensed something was amiss and ran to the back bedroom where the owners saw the window the burgler had broken to enter and also noticed that a pillowcase had been taken. Police have no suspects.

I'll take it in all sizes...

TOUCHE DRESS shop suffered a shoplifting on Monday, Oct. 22 when $620 worth of dresses were stolen.

Employees at the establishment, located on Lincoln Street, didn't see anyone take the clothes and the police have no suspects.

Domestic dispute

A DOMESTIC dispute occurred Thursday Oct. 18 when a couple attempting to reconcile a dissolving relationship ended up in a slapping match with one another.

The incident occurred in the area of San Carlos and Camino del Monte at approximately 11:30 a.m. The female combatant called the police but decided not to prosecute, so no charges were filed with the police.

Unfortunately, as we saw with the murder/suicide last month, domestic violence encroaches every neighborhood, and even Carmel is not exempt.

CYC NOTES

Spirit in the material world

AFTER WATCHING a rare Eagles win on Monday Night Football we were locking up the Carmel Youth Center when we noticed a light shining from beneath the gym door. We slowly opened the door and discovered a tall bald man dressed in glowing jams and shooting hoops. And when he dribbled the ball it didn't make a sound. As we stood staring in disbelief he turned around and waved, then approached us. After we became coherent enough to speak, we asked for an interview. After some negotiating on a fee, we came to an agreement.

P & M: So tell us exactly who or what you are?

Spirit: I'm the spirit that watched over this place. Kind of like the soul of the building. The heart that pumps the lifeblood through the building. The watchkeeper to the underworld. Sounds pretty impressive doesn't it? I think I read it in a Stephen King novel...always wanted to say it. Can I show you a card trick?

P & M: Not right now. So tell us why are you here?

Spirit: Well, basically just hanging, you know, playing basketball, watching the tube, playing video games, shooting pool, checking out your Surf and Skate movies every Wednesday afternoon. Lately I've been trying out that gnarly weight room and that new equipment. I'll tell you it's great to see all those young people working out in there every Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoon. By the way, didn't that Coach Covington use to play football for Temple University? I thought he looked familiar. That was back in the days when they still wore leather helmets wasn't it?

P & M: No comment. Will you compare the difference in the Carmel Youth Center from the '50s to now?

Spirit: Well, the kids of the '50s and early '60s had an energy in everything they did, of course in that period of time, a lot was happening. Television about space travel, it seemed like every day something new and exciting was happening and the future looked bright. Then in the mid '60s all the way to the '80s, things got too serious for kids. There was a war that they had to worry about, economic problems, so there wasn't much activity here. Basically kids got scared, they realized it was a cruel world out there and started rebelling.I see more energy in the children of the '80s and now the '90s. They're just having a hard time figuring out where to channel that energy. There are so many distractions that they got overloaded to the point where they get bored, but they're figuring it out. It's a lot harder being a kid in the '90s than in the '50s. How about that trick now?

P & M: Maybe later. How about comparing the youth center's main benefactors, starting with Bing Crosby and now Clint Eastwood.

Spirit: They've both done quite a bit to keep this place going. Bing started it out, then when it was coming apart, Clint picked it back up. Bing keeps a close eye of the place, that is when he's not on the golf course. Let's see what else, well Clint's a better actor than Bing and Bing's a much better singer and they're both pretty decent golfers. Phil is better than both of them though.

P & M: How do you see the Carmel Youth Center in the future.

Spirit: Well I'm not at liberty to discuss the future. But let me say this: I'm looking forward to the upcoming year with all the dances and parties scheduled, especially the Halloween party on the 27th for fourth and fifth and sixth-graders from 7 to 9 p.m. I can't wait to see the kids' costumes.

P & M: We thank you for your time, any last comments you would like to make or any words of wisdom to leave us with?

Spirit: Yes. First off isn't that show Twin Peaks strange. I mean, talk about weird. Second, someone needs to explain to me those games that those people play here on Sundays in the Game Gallery, I can't figure them out. Third, always keep duct tape in your car, you can fix anything with that stuff. So can I show you my card trick now? Pick a card, any card, and I'll tell you what it is.

P & M: OK.

Spirit: It's the 10 of diamonds, right?

P & M: No not quite.

Spirit: Wait let me try it again. You must have done something wrong.

Carmel Youth Center hours are Monday through Friday, 3 to 8 p.m. Weekends open at noon. Phone 624-3285.

Foster care families needed

The Office of Community and Children's Services needs homes willing to share their families with children who need an alternative home – whether it be for six months or the whole year – while family reunification services are offered, or eventually a permanent home.

Almost every currently licensed foster home is filled, the office reports. For information about fostering or adopting a child, call 899-8061 or 755-4660.

Love addiction recovery offered

A women's love addiction recovery group meets every Thursday at the Community Human Services Project. This group is for women who want to work on painful patterns in addictive relationships that block intimacy.

Facilitator is Ellen Stevens, certified drug and alcohol counselor, who has 10 years of experience working with women in recovery.

The group meets 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. Thursdays in Monterey. For details, call 899-4131.

Three women join forces to fight for laws to halt cruelty to horses

By DAVID LELAND

A TRIO of local animal lovers believes the time has come for legislation to halt severe mistreatment of horses purchased at public auctions.

In addition to actively combating and preventing cruelty to horses via strict legislation, Carmel-based, non-profit Horse Power is attempting to educate horse owners that some auctions may be a front for potential animal abuse.

"It's an issue that seems like it's so inexcusable you can't justify what's going on," said Horse Power member Marilyn Farrar, who cofounded the Animal Rights Council, a county-based animal rights group, with Jo Stallard.

Specifically, Carmel resident Farrar and comembers Sharon Johnston of Pebble Beach and Carmel Valley resident Debbie Tiernan are seeking laws concerning the transportation of horses from auction to slaughterhouse.

The group has meetings set up with state Sen. Henry Mello and Assemblyman Sam Farr to discuss future legislation, according to Tiernan.

With the exception of New York, states allow horses to be transported in double-decked trailers designed to ship cattle, Johnston said.

"This creates a terrible condition for the horses who cannot raise their heads in these trailers which are made for smaller animals," Johnston said. "Injured horses and foals are brutally whipped into trucks. In the summer, temperatures reach well over 100 degrees and, in this heat, the horses are crammed together and transported for often thousands of miles."

About 500,000 U.S. horses were transported to slaughterhouses last year, principally to provide horse meat for European countries and Japan, Tiernan said.

Last month, a sting operation in Fresno resulted in three misdemeanor animal abuse citations for so-called "killer buyers," who often transport horses in cramped quarters to slaughterhouses in other states.

Johnston was on the scene to survey the carnage first-hand.

"It was a horrifying sight," she said. "Among animals on board were three blind horses and two so crippled that they could not stand after the truck started.

CARMEL RIVER WATER NEWS

By Henrietta Stern

Too many trees?

IN MANY of my columns, I have discussed the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District's efforts to preserve and enhance riparian vegetation along the Carmel River. Recall that riparian species include the willow, alders, cottonwoods, and other vegetation that stabilize river banks and provide habitat for many birds and wildlife.

Due to the drought, a curious situation has developed. Riparian trees have grown in the middle of the river channel, which could pose erosion hazards. My title is a little misleading...it's not a situation of too many trees, rather, trees in the wrong location.

How did these trees get there, and why are they a problem? It's time for another mini-hydrology lesson. In normal years, seedlings from riparian trees begin to grow in the river channel in summer, but strong stormflow the following winter washes them out to sea. Thus the channel remains open for the stormwater to make its way downstream without impediments.

DROUGHT CREATES PROBLEMS

In a sustained drought such as the present four-year event, the seedlings establish themselves in the river channel, but they are not washed away due to the lack of winter stormflow. Thus they grow larger and larger each year, and become well-established trees in the middle of the river channel.

The potential problem arises with the next normal year winter flow, which we hope will begin this 1990-91 water year! The winter stormflows would likely not be powerful enough to wash away the well-established trees that have developed in the past four years. "Straight" downstream flow would be impeded by the mid-channel vegetation, which may create "islands" in the river. Stormflow would be diverted by the mid-channel trees toward the riverbanks. The storm water would tear away at the riverbanks, creating property damage, loss of stabilizing riverbank vegetation and destruction of fish habitat by the sediment. Not a very pretty, nor desirable scenario!

This potential problem would occur in two main areas of the Carmel River – from Scarlett Road to the Boronda Road Bridge, and in an area in Carmel Valley Village, both upstream and downstream of Rosie's Bridge. This problem isn't evident downstream of mid-valley because river flow has been minimal or lacking altogether. Four years of drought have not allowed new riparian seedlings to even gain a foothold in this area.

DISTRICT VEGETATION CLEARING PROGRAM

So, what can we do to prevent this scenario from occuring? We can delay it by praying for another drought year, but that doesn't sound like a good solution! On a more constructive note, the water management district held a special workshop on this issue on Oct. 18, and is poised to begin a project to remove vegetation from the channel bottom starting Oct. 22. The project would be part of the district's Carmel River Management Program, which was formed seven years ago to help stabilize the Carmel River channel, prevent erosion and assist riverfront property owners to protect their property.

DISTRICT ACTIONS

District staff will selectively cut vegetation in the active channel bottom along vulnerable portions of the Carmel River to reduce obstruction to river flows and the potential for bank erosion. Cutting will be done by hand, using chainsaws, loppers, and other hand tools.

Stockpiling or disposal of the vegetation will be a major effort. Material will be chipped and spread beyond the banks away from the river channel, so it won't cause obstruction problems by washing downstream. The work is proposed to begin at the downstream end and proceed upstream. Hopefully, the storms will stay at bay until mid-December, when the project will be completed. Then, let 'er gush!

Another potential hazard is that some trees in the lower Carmel Valley, primarily cottonwoods, have died and fallen into the river channel. District staff has been able to largely resolve this problem by cutting the deadfall into short lengths so they will not cause erosion at the site or obstruction if washed downstream.

FREE LABOR!

Hand cutting is a labor-intensive job. The district has only two four-wheel drive trucks available for assisting in the channel-clearing project.

Luckily, district staff has contacted the California Conservation Corps, the California Department of Forestry, Monterey County agencies, and Cal-Am to assist with crews and equipment. A California Conservation Corps crew is available in late October and early December for two-week periods, and a California Department of Forestry crew is available in November.

These two agencies can provide personnel and some equipment for hand cutting and removal of vegetation. Monterey County Department of Public Works, Monterey County Flood Control and Water Conservation District and Cal-Am may also be able to assist with personnel and/or equipment.

LANDOWNER COOPERATION IS CRITICAL

In order to allow a thorough and successful job, every landowner in the affected regions must give the district permission to work on their property. Vegetation will be cut only in areas where the property owner has given permission to cut. Permission forms have been mailed to all property owners in the project area.

The district and the Carmel River Advisory Committee (CRAC), a volunteer citizen's group appointed by the district board, urge cooperation from all of the 130 property owners involved. Permits have also been obtained from the County Flood Control District and the California Department of Fish and Game.

GET READY FOR WINTER

If you are driving along Carmel Valley Road, and notice that trees are being cut along the river, don't be alarmed. These trees are in the wrong place at the wrong time, and we need to correct that. With the cooperation of all the agencies noted above, as well as the property owners, the district should have the channel cleared in time for what we hope will be the beginning of a healthy, robust rainy season!

Legal Services for Seniors moves

Legal Services for Seniors, a non-profit organization providing free legal services to low income seniors in Monterey County, has relocated its Monterey Peninsula office.

The office is now located at 413 Forest Ave. in Pacific Grove, in a restored Victorian home, one-half block up from Pine Avenue. Bus transportation will bring clients within a block of the office.

The new location will be open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, and is staffed by four legal advocates. Appointments are necessary. For more information, call 372-3989.

NOEL MAPSTED LEADS HATTON CANYON HIKES

Hikes through the Hatton Canyon area will be led every Sunday until the end of the year by Carmel environmentalist Noel Mapsted.

Mapsted will discuss the natural diversity of the canyon, including the native Monterey pine stands, wetlands and habitat of Hickman's onion. The walk will entail the entire proposed Hatton Canyon Freeway route.

Participants should meet at 11 a.m. behind the Bank of America on Rio Road (next to Baker's Square restaurant), to carpool to Carpenter Street where the hike will start.

The hike goes one-way down Hatton Canyon, all downhill for about 2.5 miles. Hikers should wear boots or sturdy shoes and bring a bag lunch. The hike, which should be over by 2 p.m., will take place rain or shine.

The hikes are free and sponsored by the Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club.

Dates for the hikes are: Oct. 28, Nov. 4, 11, 18, 25, Dec. 2, 9, 16, 23, and 30.

On Saturday, Nov. 3, Mapsted will lead a hike from Jack's Peak to Hatton Canyon, a moderately difficult, all-day, 6-mile hike. It will be an exploratory hike to show that Jack's Peak Park can be extended to Hatton Canyon. Meet at 9 a.m. behind the Bank of America.

For more information call Mapsted at 624-3263.

They're fighting to stop cruelty

"The sheriff's department had to destroy two of them to put them out of their pain, and one actually died on its own the next morning. The autopsy shows it was literally crushed to death by the other horses as a result of overcrowding on the truck."

Many times more than 100 horses are jammed onto a truck designed to carry only 40, she said.

WITH BUYERS receiving about $20 a head, it is easy to see why sellers could be motivated to transport as many horses at one time as possible.

Johnston added that most "killer buyers" are under contract with slaughterhouses in Texas, parts of the Midwest and Canada.

"Motivated by profit, truckers overload trailers indiscriminately without regard for the animals' ability to withstand the transportation," said Johnston, adding that many times the trip can take more than three days. "Pregnant mares, stallions, ponies and horses with broken bones are herded together without consideration for the resulting inhuman consequences."

Johnston added that foals are often used for their skin, which garners a high price.

Members of Horse Power frequently attend weekly sales at the 101 Auction on Highway 101 between Salinas and Gilroy.

They stood by helplessly last August when a horse well-known at the Pebble Beach stables was purchased by a "killer buyer."

"He was a big horse, I can imagine how he suffered," Johnston said. "He worked hard all his life; it's sad to see it end that way."

Johnston said she recently purchased a sick pony for $6 at the auction, only to spend $200 putting the animal to sleep.

"We bought it to save it from that awful truck ride," she said.

Tiernan said Horse Power, founded in January, is working with animal right's advocates from statewide.

The group's long-range plan is to purchase horse trailers so they can buy horses at auctions and transport them to new locales.

"We want to adopt them out to good homes, rather than sending a healthy 3-year-old horse to the slaughterhouse," Tiernan said.

Horse Power suggests that interested people contact their local representatives by letter or phone; report any abuse to the SPCA; and warn anyone of the potential perils of selling their horse at an auction.

"Horse dealers will tell you anything but the truth about the horse's destination," Johnston said. "Many are middle men for 'killer buyers.' "

For more information on Horse Power call 624-3254.

Remember When

squabble that the people who run this burg live for. I would like to suggest a few options for him.

1. He could run for mayor. That would teach them that half the knack of being a bully is knowing who to pick on. If he was the mayor I'll bet he could get that building up without one squawk out of the rest of them.

2. He could make a "60 minutes"-type documentary and show it all over the country. A good working title might be "How I fought Carmel." The film would probably make him a lot of money.

3. He could place himself in exile, never to partake of the one-of-a-kind joy that Carmel offers to live here. Let's face it, Clint Eastwood is a part of this town. If the civic leaders want to act nasty, he could just hit the trail, then they'd be sorry.

I think Mr. Eastwood should have his building the way he wants it — within safety codes. Twenty-five years down the road people will probably say it's one of the best looking buildings in the town.

Varsity and JV Football

Each team had a bye this last week. They are preparing for their contests with perennial champs Palma on Friday (10/26) at the Salinas Municipal Stadium. Game times 5:45 p.m. and 8 p.m.

Frosh Football

The CHS freshmen lost to Salinas (33-12) last Saturday (10/20) at home. Larry Brooks and Evi Plata completed the scoring for Carmel. The team had an excellent second half. Other outstanding players were Sam Melton, Pete Jepson, and Matt Sortwell, who played both offense and defense. Bright spots were Steven Schmidt, Dan Silver, Rober Schaffer and Jamie Cosseboom. The Frosh see action on Friday (10/26) against Palma at 3:45 p.m.

Cross Country

At the MTAL Center Meet on Thursday (10/18) Carmel finished third in boys varsity (75 points) behind Gonzales (37 points) and King City (67 points). Will Allen led the Padres with a second-place finish overall in a personal-best time of 16:46.00 minutes over the three-mile Toro Park course. The remaining four scorers also had personal-best times with Cody West in 19th (18:23.20), John Pak in 20th (18:26.21), Brian Kingsley in 21st (18:26.22), and Andrew Kylander-Clark in 23rd (18:40.24).

The Padre girls team was incomplete, but an outstanding performance was turned in by Heather Andrews, who placed eighth overall with a time of 23:20.00, beating her previous best time by almost two and a half minutes. The Padres travel to Pacific Grove on Wednesday (10/24) to compete against Santa Catalina and Pacific Grove.

Swimming and Diving

The Carmel Girls Swimming and Diving Team faced its two toughest competitors last week when Live Oak and Gilroy High schools came to town. On Tuesday (10/16) Carmel lost the closest meet in the league (97-88) against the larger Morgan Hill School. Then, on Thursday (10/18), the Padres defeated Gilroy (99-88) in another close swim meet. In the Live Oak meet alone, there were almost 50 season/personal-best times turned in.

Outstanding swimmers for Carmel's varsity squad were Tisha Satow, Julie Ceballos, Cristin Clack, and other relay team members – Erin Johnson, Lauren Johnson, and Amy Allard. For the junior varsity, who lost to Live Oak, but won the Gilroy meet in the last relay, the outstanding swimmers were Kyle Decker, Kim Kurz, Erin Scholl, and Jacquie MacMillan.

The Padres travel this week to Monterey on Tuesday (10/23) and Pacific Grove on Thursday (10/25).

Volleyball

Carmel's Varsity Volleyball team was defeated by Alisal and Notre Dame in straight games this past week. The losses dropped the Padres league record to 1-8. Consistent performances were turned in by Marni Marasco at the setter position and Amy Gray in the front row.

The Frosh/Soph team defeated Alisal for their third straight victory before dropping a match at Notre Dame. Strong contributions were made by Leticia Silva (back row), Jennifer Forlizzo (setting), and Bridget Bohnen (net play).

The Padres traveled to King City Tuesday (10/23) and are hosting the Gonzales Spartans today, (10/25) in Craig Gymnasium.

FENTON FOUNDER'S FUND

Ruth Fenton has touched the lives of many families on the peninsula. A groundswell of love and appreciation for her efforts has resulted in the establishment of the Fenton Founder's Fund, an endowment fund that will support the continuing programs of Youth Music Monterey, Ruth's musical gift to the children of the peninsula and now, the entire country.

Through Ruth's efforts Youth Music Monterey has affiliated with the Eastman School of Music, guaranteeing a superior program of summer music camps that will continue to be available to young musicians from Monterey County and across the United States. The camps are conducted at Robert Louis Stevenson School.

Youth Music Monterey Board President Annette LeSeige introduced the Fenton Founder's Funds at an intimate dinner party and a performance by the Cleveland Quartet at the Carmel Highlands home of Mrs. Ansel Adams.

THE JOINT WAS JUMPIN'

The Golf Club at Quail Lodge shivered its timbers last weekend when local movers and shakers took it over for the Phantasy Ball, a black-tie benefit for Natividad Medical Center.

High-energy New York song-and-dance group Le Masquerade brought the sequined and tuxedoed to their feet and on to the packed dance floor for the entire evening. Revelers only stopped to eat. In between bites they boogied, bopped and kicked up their heels along with the professional troupe.

"They must have needed an excuse to let loose," a breathless partygoer observed. "This group never behaves like this."

Glow worms and a few tambourines sent dancers' inhibitions packing. Glow worms, for lack of a better word, are those fluorescent strings of greenish-bluish light that kids wear on Halloween.

Not captured on film were:

Bridget Hildebrand on a dead run for the dance floor to join the chorus line in Anything Goes.

Dirk Oldenburg, wearing his glow worm like a halo, sitting next to Father McSweeny of our Lady of Mount Carmel.

Char Etienne, rockin' out with a Le Masquerade '50s star.

And instead of an auction Myron "Doc" Etienne and a comely group of "nurses" made the rounds of the audience writing prescriptions for donations. The "nurses," David Armansco, Mike Assum, Denny LeVett, Tony Lombardo, Jim Barnes, John McCauley, Peter Blackstock, Tony Rishe, Bob Bussinger, Fred Sadler, John de Canha, John Schatz, Jose Fernandez, Myles Williams and Sam Karas.

"Doc's nurses" poked and prodded potential donors at the Phantasy Ball and collected $13,000 worth of pledges in about 10 minutes.

AUTUMN AUCTION

If you had gone to the Pacific Grove Chamber's Autumn Auction and Dinner Dance at Rancho Canada last weekend you could have bid on, among other things, a private performance at California's First Theater for 134 people. Add 150 buttons from Buy A Button and two cases of artichokes and what do you have?

Say it three times, as fast as you can. Boos, buttons, hisses and thistles.

NETWORKING

Women invented networking. Tupperware parties, baby showers and coffee with the "girls" after the kids were off to school have always kept women in touch with each other. Men took networking into the corporate boardroom in the '70s, but it's still a woman's forte.

The Professional Women's Network, the largest professional woman's group on the Monterey Peninsula, with 160 members, held a Vendor's Showcase at the Pacific Grove Community Center as part of National Business Women's Week.

Skills that women have always taken for granted have now become marketable. Over 20 members displayed their merchandise and demonstrated the services they offer. Intuition, communication, and mom's loving touch have been translated to Five-Minute Intuitive Readings, a Puppet Program to help school children understand other's handicaps and Message Therapy.

DR. ARNOLD Manor, Bach Festival board member, Youth Music Monterey board member Kevin Cartwright, Larry Seeman and Teri Schadeck enjoyed the evening in the courtyard of Mrs. Ansel Adams home before going inside to dinner and a performance by the Cleveland Quartet.

MARIA KASTROS and Marguerite Andrews can't wait to go to The Lodge for an afternoon tea with Lodge resident manager, Gary Davis. All three kicked up their heels at the Natividad Medical Center benefit.

WHEN ASKED to pose for a photo for the Pine Cone, Virginia Stanton commented to Susan Obaid of Pebble Beach, "Our good little paper, the Pine Cone is getting better and better." Virginia and Susan were on hand for the performance of the Cleveland Quartet at the home of Mrs. Ansel Adams.

VIRGINIA BARRETT of Pebble Beach hopped off a jet and into an evening dress so she wouldn't miss a moment of the Phantasy Ball, a benefit for Natividad Medical Center. Tony Rishe of Carmel wanted to know all about her recent European tour of cooking schools. (Chris Hulse photos.)

TONY LOMBARDO, who later made an appearance as one of "Doc" Etienne's nurses, discussed proper bedside manner with Dirk Oldenburg at the cocktail reception prior to the Phantasy Ball at Quail Lodge.

CARNIVAL CAPERS

Tularcitos Elementary School's Fall Carnival had a Haunted House, food, games and Cow Pie Bingo.

No, no one had to touch the stuff. A big brown cow walked around a giant chalk-marked bingo card all day long and finally dropped one on the winning number.

For excitement, this even ranks right up there with watching grass grow, and these days, that's sloooow.

Over at York School, the Fall Fair chairperson, Cynthia O'Rourke won the grand prize in the raffle, a cruise on Monterey Bay. She's in need of some R and R after organizing this successful event. Over 600 people came to the Fair and $10,000 was raised for the school.

ROBINSON JEFFERS

Goldberger, who won the Pulitzer for Distinguished Criticism, addressed "Architecture, Development and the Coastal Environment" at the Jeffers Banquet, held at La Playa Hotel on the Saturday evening of the festival.

PEEPS

Asked recently if she has accomplished all her goals, Ruth Fenton replied.

"Goals? It's a privilege for me to work with these young musicians. I'm the one who has gotten the most out of it."

But it goes beyond music.

"If a person is seen as a complete circle, then creativity is a wedge or part of that circle," Ruth continued. "Children must have creativity in their lives and since Prop 13 if they don't get it in school, then where will they get it?

Ruth's most recent accolade came this week. The Monterey County Community Foundation awarded her the Distinguished Trustee Award, for outstanding service to the community.

Gary Davis, resident manager at The Lodge, believes a perfect tabletop presentation of fine china, crystal and linen adds to the complete dining experience.

Meticulous in every detail, Gary personally selected the antique floral Haviland china that will be used for afternoon tea starting Nov. 5 in the Terrace Lounge at The Lodge. Matching in color, but slightly different in pattern, each piece reflects the depth of quality that Gary and his staff strive to maintain.

Down to the way the napkin is folded. Gary folds a mean napkin and can press, poke and twist a square of linen into just about any shape you can think of; birds, hats or plain old "wipe the gravy off your chin."

Best dressed trick-or-treaters will be wearing "boo socks" this year. Check out Bib n' Tucker for "boo socks." Cynthia Talbott has been busy at her Rosewood Studio in Carmel Valley making them for the growing number of retail clients who love her hand-painted children's clothes and tennis shoes.

IRONIES AND INTRIGUES

Food writers have coined a new word for celebrity chefs. Now they're "super-chefs." Sounds a little like Super-Chief, those silver passenger trains that used to speed through my home town and hold up traffic in both directions. Well, according to a recent press release two "super-chefs" will be judging the cooking efforts at the 1991 Gourmet Gala. They are Joachim Splichal and Rene Verdon.

Speed through town? Hold up traffic? My old definition may still apply today.

PULITZER PRIZE-winner Paul Goldberger, guest speaker at the Tor House Foundation dinner, with foundation president Hadley Osborn. (Will Wallace photos.)

AUCTION CHAIRPERSON Laverne Seeman (seated), and decorations chairperson Debby Amaral greeted guests to the PG chamber's Autumn Auction and Dinner Dance. Debby and her mother, Bernice Hungerford, followed a Halloween theme and crafted haunted houses as the centerpiece for each table.

CHAR ETIENNE took a breather from pre-show panic and posed with Laura Hartman, the Fire Witch with Le Masquerade, the song-and-dance troupe that was the catalyst that made the Phantasy Ball an unforgettable evening.

The people at KCBA TV in Salinas know how to program a party. They dropped their grand opening celebration last Thursday into the time slot left open when the A's and Red's were on the road. Good show!

Fund-raiser Alert! Ask your favorite donor winery to explain the ramifications of Prop 134 and Prop 126 to you. The proposed excise tax on table wine may limit the amount of bottles the wineries will have available for donations and sponsorships.

A source in the Honolulu resort biz tells us that Japanese resort owners make their decisions quietly, behind closed doors, and are taking heat for it from the westerners. So now they're getting concerned about their image, or non-image as the case may be. If you think nothing is happening at Pebble Beach, think again. No news is not necessarily good news.

TRAVELER'S ADVISORY

What's just two and a half hours away by car that promises a weekend of variety, fun and escape. San Francisco? Wrong. Head south instead of north. Destination: San Luis Obispo and environs. Best bets include the hot springs and accommodations at Sycamore Mineral Springs on Avila Beach Drive and dinner at Giuseppe's in Pismo Beach.

ABALONE CLUB HALLOWEEN PARTY SET

The Carmel Abalone Club will hold its annual Halloween party immediately following the city's Halloween Parade (approximately 5:30 p.m.), Wednesday, Oct. 31 at the Great Western Bank, Seventh and Dolores in Carmel.

Club members and guests are welcome to attend; costumes are suggested.

The Abalone Club is a city-sanctioned organization with the twin objectives of volunteering for charity events and having fun. All local residents are welcome to join. For more information on the party or to become a member, contact Maxine Jennings at 624-6547.

CARMEL — BOHEMIANISM TO COMMERCIALIALISM

The Carmel Residents Association will feature Dr. J.S. Holliday speaking on "Carmel — Bohemianism to Commercialism" at its Thursday, Oct. 25th meeting to be held at 4:30 p.m. at Lumber Yard Hall — at Vista Lobos Park (formerly Handley Lumber). Dr. Holliday, one of California's most popular and talented lecturers, brings a wealth of understanding and insight to this stimulating topic.

Holliday, who is vice president of the Carmel Residents Association has been director of the California Historical Society, director of the Oakland Museum and assistant director of the Bancroft Library. He is author of one of the finest books ever published on the California gold rush, The World Rushed In.

This event will be held at the new meeting room created by the City in the former lumber shed at the southwest corner of the Vista Lobos parking lot on Torres Street at Third. The public is invited.

GARAGE SALE TO BENEFIT CARMEL VALLEY HISTORY SOCIETY

A garage sale to benefit the Carmel Valley History Society's Museum Building fund will be held at Rosie's Cracker Barrel, 1 Esquiline Road, Carmel Valley, on Saturday and Sunday Oct. 27 and 28 from 8 a.m.

PEACE VIGIL TO BE HELD EVERY SUNDAY

The Women's International League for Peace and Freedom is sponsoring a weekly Vigil For Peace in the Middle East to be held every Sunday from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Window-on-the-Bay Park at Del Monte Avenue and Camino El Estero in Monterey.

Everyone who shares oncern over the extraordinary military build-up of the U.S. in Saudi Arabia, everyone who would like to see our government supporting negotiations over the problems of the region (Kuwait, Palestine, and more), everyone who sees that war in the Middle East would be a disaster rather than a solution, everyone who would like to bring the troops home, everyone who wants the United Nations or the Arab League to mediate a solution, everyone who wants our money used for human needs, not war, is invited to participate.

WILPF suggests that vigilers bring a picnic lunch, bring their families, bring friends, and come by foot, bicycle, paddle or sail, if possible, to demonstrate a willingness to reduce oil consumption to avoid a cause of war.

HALLOWEEN LUNCHEON/AUCTION SCHEDULED

The Catholic Daughters of the Americas will hold a Halloween Luncheon and Silent Auction in St. Angela's Hall, 10th and Lighthouse, Pacific Grove on Saturday, Oct. 27. A lasagne lunch will be served from 11 to 1:30 p.m. Auction will open at 11, clost 3 p.m.

CHURCH TO HOST RENAISSANCE FAIR

A Renaissance Fair will be held at the Monterey Church of Religious Science, Franklin and Pacific Streets, on Saturday, Oct. 27 from 2 to 7 p.m. Wear an Elizabethan costume, if you are feeling adventurous and join in the fun.

Arts and crafts, food booths, and activities for children will be available. A work of art, donated by George de Groat, which is valued at $2,500, will be raffled off. Contact church office at 372-7326 for chances to win it.

STATE SUICIDE INTERVENTION TRAINING

The Suicide Prevention and Crisis Center of Monterey and San Benito County is sponsoring a 2-day intensive workshop on Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 30 and 31, 1990 from 8:30 to 4:30 p.m. at Colton Inn. Fee for the workshop is $75 and pre-registration is required, as space is limited.

This workshop is designed to provide participants with the confidence and basic skills to intervene in a suicidal crisis until the immediate danger has passed and further resources can be mobilized. The workshop utilizes videos, lecture, discussion and role play to give students the best possible learning environment.

Workshop facilitators are Pat Garrigues, executive director of the Suicide Prevention and Crisis Center and Sarah Longaker, volunteer training director for SPCC and workshop facilitator and trainer in her own business. Both have been trained and certified by the state of California to teach this specialized 2-day course.

The workshop is open to the general public, and is valuable for persons in the helping professions or those who work with people at risk. It is especially recommended for the following groups: first responders (fire, police, EMTs), school counselors & nurses, teachers, health care providers, crisis center workers, peer counselors and parents of teens. It is not recommended for those who've recently suffered a major loss.

For more information or to register, contact Pat Garrigues at the Suicide Prevention and Crisis Center during business hours at 375-6966.

Seniors program needs participants

In September 1987 the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department began a program to benefit senior citizens of the community in two ways.

First, senior citizens who live alone and are often "shut-in" their residences with little or no contact with friends or relatives, can be provided with the security of knowing that someone does truly care about their welfare. Also, those concerned with their physical well-being will have someone to check on them daily.

Second, seniors interested in participating in some type of community program will be able to work with those in their own peer group by volunteering to place these daily telephone calls to the recipients of the program.

Currently, the department has a full staff of volunteers, however, anyone wishing to be placed on an alternate list to fill in when another caller is unable to make it or is away on vacation, is encouraged to call for information.

Anyone living alone, whether concerned about their health or not, and all those seniors wishing to make new friends or just have the opportunity to talk with someone new each day is encouraged to participate in this program.

Telephone calls are made daily by a volunteer beginning at 9:30 a.m. If someone fails to answer their telephone, a patrol unit is sent by to conduct a welfare check at the residence.

In addition to these daily telephone "visitations," social events are also planned periodically as well as home visitations upon request.

POLICE SHOOT HOOPS

The Monterey Police Association is sponsoring a benefit basketball game at the Monterey Peninsula College gymnasium on Sunday, Oct. 28 at 6 p.m.

The game will pit the Monterey Police Association All-Stars against the NFL Celebrity Veterans – made up of ex-Oakland Raiders. An autograph and photograph session will be held with the players at halftime.

Tickets to the competition are available in advance by calling 655-1324. Prices are $8 for adults, $4 for children. The proceeds will benefit local youth activities throughout the peninsula.

Halloween safety

IN A continuing effort to keep children safe from ghosts, goblins and things that go bump in the night, the Monterey Peninsula Jaycees, in cooperation with local police agencies, are making available glow-in-the-dark "necklaces" for Halloween. For more information on the free safety devices call the Jaycees at 394-0426 or your local police station.

CARMEL HALLOWEEN PARADE SET FOR OCT. 31

People of Carmel, be afraid...be very afraid.

Ghouls, goblins, creatures of the night, and a few assorted princesses thrown in for good measure, will be parading through our village on Oct. 31 – Halloween!

The devilish event begins at 4 p.m., with children assembling in the parking lot of Sunset Center located at San Carlos and Ninth Avenue. Children may start gathering as early as 3:30 p.m., but must be in line by 3:50 p.m. in order to participate in the parade. Anyone arriving late will have to meet the parade at the botttom of Ocean Avenue in the refreshment area.

The City of Carmel-by-the-Sea requests that any child seven years of age or under be accompanied by an adult. Adults are encouraged to join in the fun by wearing a costume as well (perhaps a Ninja Turtle?)

The children will be separated by grade level for the parade. This is done for the convenience of those not accompanied by a parent. Families may walk together if they desire. No bicycles or skateboards will be allowed.

In the event of rain, the parade will be cancelled.

REP. PANETTA TO ADDRESS THE NEW FORUM ON 'NATIONAL BUDGET IN A CHANGING WORLD'

Rep. Leon Panetta, chairman of the House Budget Committee, will be returning from Washington after long-drawn battles over the 1991 federal budget. He will speak at the Holiday Inn located at 1000 Aguajito Road on Monday, Oct. 29 at noon.

Last May 12, Panetta talked with members of more than 20 local organizations affiliated with the Quality of Life Campaign in an all-day meeting at Monterey Peninsula College. He promised to return to discuss these matters after a new federal budget had been agreed upon in Washington.

He has represented the 16th District for the last 14 years. At the Oct. 29 luncheon, he is expected to discuss plans for the federal budget for the next five years.

Other questions to be highlighted will include: "How will we pay for the military, for health care, for education, for housing and for environmental clean-up? Are the proposed cuts wise and fair? Will there be a peace dividend?"

The public is welcome. Reservations for the luncheon can be made by calling The New Forum at 375-4518.

TRANSCENDENTAL MEDITATION LECTURES

There will be a series of free introductory lectures on Transcendental Meditation as taught by Maharishi Mahesh Yogi, Thursday Oct. 25 through Wednesday, Oct. 31, all at 7 p.m. For directions and further information call David Rosenkranz at 624-9169.

BRIDGE RESULTS REVEALED

At last Monday's bridge game held at Sunset Center, two pairs, both playing east/west, had an excellent game score of 73 on a 60 average. They were Ted Holt and Faye Schloss and Alma Connell and Vera Marco Lli. Other winning pairs were: north/south first place won by Ted and Rae Case; second place by Dick Doe and Maurice Young; third place by Charlotte Eliot and Marly Lou Bernhardt. East/west third place was won by Lee Whitcomb and Ethyl Rittermall.

Bridge games are held every Monday at 1 p.m. All bridge players are welcome to attend. For information call 625-4307. Please leave message.

RED RIBBON WEEK SET FOR OCT. 21-28

Red Ribbon Week, Oct. 21-28, will be highlighted by school and community events throughout Monterey County. Coordinated locally by the Monterey County Health Department's Division of Alcohol and Drug Programs, the Red Ribbon Week campaign is a community-based alcohol and drug prevention program.

The campaign was launched in 1985 following the murder of federal DEA agent Enrique "Kiki" Camarena by drug traffickers.

The county division of alcohol and drug programs is joining with the Monterey County Office of Education in distributing 37,000 red ribbons to schools thoughout the county. Of the 37,000 ribbons, 6,600 are printed in Spanish. The division is urging citizens to demonstrate thier commitment to healthy drug-free lifestyles by wearing and displaying red ribbons during the week and by participating in the week's activities.

For more information on various activities around the county, call 647-7650.

CATERING SERVICE RAISES FUNDS FOR CHILDREN

The Cypress Chapter of Children's Services Center is a volunteer group of 30 women whose catering activities at the Laguna Seca Raceway provide major funding for children and youth who are in need of foster and adoptive family care. Since 1974, this group of business and professional women have given thousands of hours of volunteer time to their mission.

Sixteen years ago, SCRAMP purchased two buildings to be used as V.I.P. Hospitality areas during the race season. Ed Magner, then president of SCRAMP approached the auxiliary to serve these areas. Several members of the chapter had professional catering experience, allowing them to accept this challenge. It was quite an experience for this nonprofit group, who had to learn to deal with providing quality food service in an area that at the time had no water or electricity. They developed a system which allows for professional presentation of catering services using volunteer members, family members and friends.

The Laguna Seca Raceway is now the chapter's primary source of fund–raising. The Cypress members routinely serve 1,500-2,000 meals on any given race weekend. Their menus range from salad bar and cold cuts to barbecued chicken or steak luncheons. The homemade cookie bars baked by members are always a favorite dessert item of their guests.

They provided the seed monies for the Children's Services Center to begin and staff the adoption program and the specialized foster care program for children with very special needs. They provide annual contributions to the support of these vital programs. In 1987, the chapter contributed to the purchase and renovation of a headquarters for the center, in Pacific Grove.

A project that is dear to the hearts of each Cypress member, is their own volunteer led program, The Cypress Educational Fund, which provides substantial scholarship assistance to foster youth who are emancipating and wish to obtain vocational or college education. Currently the chapter is supporting 10 youngsters in college programs.

COMMUNITY FOUNDATION AWARDS GRANTS TOTALING $500,000

Todd Lueders, executive director of the Community Foundation for Monterey County, announced that the foundation's board awarded two grants, totaling $500,000, to the Monterey History and Art Association toward the construction of the association's new Maritime Museum and History Center.

Lueders reported that "The grants are from the foundation's Thomas Doud, Sr. and Anita M. Doud Fund No. 2, established in 1984 to benefit the Monterey History and Art Association's historic preservation operations and, in making the grants, the foundation recognizes the importance of keeping this area's dramatic and colorful heritage alive."

The new facility, to be named "The Stanton Center" in honor of Mrs. Virginia Stanton and her late husband Robert will be located adjacent to the Monterey Custom House Plaza on a site made available by the City of Monterey at no cost to the association.

Gordon Paul Smith, chairman of the association's board, said, "The association deeply appreciates these generous grants of the foundation. They are decisive in taking this major civic historical and cultural project very close to the construction starting line, which should be soon after the first of next year".

Smith said, "The project's total cost is estimated at $5,9 million, with over $5,6 million, or 95 percent of the total goal, in funding already committed, leaving only about $300,000 more to raise. We're confident of completing the capital campaign soon.

"We're grateful to over 1,000 individuals and businesses whose contributions have amounted to $3,600,000, to 19 foundations who have made $1,390,000 in grants, to the state Department of Parks and Recreation which is participating with $900,000, and to the City of Monterey for the building's surrounding area. And, we are particularly appreciative of Mrs. Virginia Stanton whose $1,500,000 challenge grants provided such an important thrust in getting this major Monterey Peninsula effort under way".

FARR ANNOUNCES VOLUNTEER INTERNSHIP POSITION

Assemblyman Sam Farr (D-Monterey/Santa Cruz) announced that his district offices currently have volunteer internship positions open. Interns will learn what a state assemblyman does as a representative for the constituents of Santa Cruz and Monterey Counties and gain experience within the legislative process.

Volunteer interns are needed to answer phones, respond to constituent inquires and to help with legislative research. Weekdays, either morning or afternoon hours are open.

For additional information, interested persons may contact the assemblyman's office at 646-1980.

SHRINERS ELECT NEW OFFICERS

Will Vandermeer of Carmel was elected 1991 president of the Monterey Peninsula Shrine Club, succeeding Charles Mauck at their annual meeting.

Offices who will serve with him are: LLoyd Peck, vice president and Amigo director; Ralph Morrow, secretary and treasurer; and directors Edmond Rudoni and Phillip Hambrook.

The Shrine Club is a non-profit organization of Master Mason dedicated to support Shiner Crippled Children Hospitals and Burn Institutes throughout the United States, Canada, and Mexico.

The Shrine Club dines out with their spouses on the second Wednesday of the month at the Pine Inn in Carmel.

CALIFORNIA RETIRED TEACHERS ASSOCIATION CONVENED

Selected delegates from the largest retired teachers association convened near San Francisco, Sept. 8 through the 9. The California Retired Teachers Association's Fall Leadership Training Council met at the Clarion Hotel.

Division presidents honed their leadership skills. New area directors attended orientation meetings. The Community Service, Scholarship, Legislation, Insurance Membership, Bylaws, Budget and Resource Services Committees met to plan the best methods of serving the membership and their communities. They organized materials to be presented later at local workshops.

OBITUARIES

John Patrick Erwin

John Patrick Erwin, of Houston, Texas, a former Carmel Valley resident, died Oct. 4 at Methodist Hospital in Houston of complications following a heart transplant. He was 53.

Born Aug. 13, 1937, in Oklahoma City, Okla., he graduated from Carmel High School and served in the Air Force from 1956 to 1960.

He had been a hotel and hospital administrator for many years, last with Indio Community Hospital in Riverside County.

Mr. Erwin is survived by his adoptive father, Kirk Schwieger of Houston, Texas; his mother, Margaret of Monterey; two brothers, Michael of Pacific Grove and Ernest of Monterey, a nephew and two nieces.

Private family services and cremation have been held in Texas.

Inurnment took place at El Carmelo Cemetary in Pacific Grove under the direction of the Paul Mortuary.

The family prefers that any contributions in his memory go to the American Heart Association.

Henry P. Hoppin

Henry Preston Hoppin, a retired insurance executive, died Oct. 9 at Community Hospital of the Monterey Penisnsula. He was 72.

A resident of Carmel for 20 years, Mr. Hoppin was born in South Orange, N.J. on Oct. 15, 1917. He graduated from Choate School in Wallingford, Conn., and was a graduate of Harvard University. He served as a captain in the Marine Corps during World War II.

Mr. Hoppin was employed by the Guardian and Prudential Insurance Companies in New York.

He was a member of the Devon Yacht Club in East Hampton, Long Island, N.Y., and a member of Carmel Valley Country Club and the Beach and Tennis Club at Pebble Beach.

He is survived by his wife, Jane; daughter, Jennie McCarthy of Pasadena; step-son, William Kuhns of Carmel; his sister, Elizabeth Horton of Wellesley, Mass.; three grandchildren; and many nieces and nephews.

A memorial service was held Oct. 13. Cremation was at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea in Pacific Grove under the direction of the Paul Mortuary.

The family requests that any memorial contributions go to the American Lung Association, 262-C San Jose St., Salinas 93901.

Marguerite Ledbetter

Marguerite B. Ledbetter, a retired administrative assistant, died Oct. 3 at her home in Carmel. She was 75.

A resident of Carmel since 1949, Mrs. Ledbetter, who was known as Margie, was born in Minot, N.D., on Jan. 27, 1915. She was emplyed for 19 years as administrative assistant to the commander of the U.S. Naval Air Station when it was located at Monterey Peninsula Airport. She retired from that position in 1965.

Mrs. Ledbetter is survived by two sons, Richard and Ted, both of Carmel; a brother, Bob Bratsberg of San Mateo; a sister, Eleanor Powell of Edmonds; and two grandchildren.

Her husband, T.R. Ledbetter, was killed off the coast of Japan aboard the U.S.S. Franklin in 1944.

Cremation took place at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea in Pacific Grove, under the direction of the Paul Mortuary, her ashes were scattered at sea.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to the donor's favorite charity.

Paul A. Anderson

Paul Alexander Anderson, a retired physicist, died Oct. 12 at Hospice of the Central Coast. He was 92.

A resident of Carmel since 1971, he was born in Chicago on Nov. 26, 1897. He was a graduate of the University of Illinois and received his doctorate degree in chemistry from Harvard University.

In 1925 he left the Eastman Kodak Research Laboratories to accept a Rockefeller Foundation appointment as head of the Physics Department at Yenching University in Beijing, China. He was a National Research Council fellow at Harvard and in Berlin from 1929 to 1931, at which time he went to Washington State University to head its Physics department.

Mr. Anderson served as a Naval aviator in World War I. During World War II, he headed a radar-research project for the Office of Scientific Research and Development and was the recipient of a presidential award for his work. He was a Fellow of the American Physical Society.

He is survived by his wife, Mary; three sons, William of Decatur, Ill., James of Boston, Mass., and three grandchildren.

At his request, no services will be held. Cremation will be at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea under the direction of the Paul Mortuary.

Daniel L. Skondin

Daniel L. Skondin, retired director of a grain and silo business and Carmel shop owner, died Friday at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peininsula on Oct. 12. He was 62.

Born in San Francisco on Aug. 24, 1928, he was a resident of Carmel for the past two years. He owned and operated the Nicara Oriental Shop on Dolores Avenue in Carmel.

Mr. Skondin started in the grain and silo business in Portland Ore., and then was director of a grain business in Korea for 11 years. He held a franchise for Famous Amos Cookies in Honolulu before moving to Carmel and opening the Nicara shop, which featured Oriental antiques.

He is survived by his wife, Oghie; four sons, Jeff of Springfield, Mass., Darrell of Portland, Ore., Dean of Phoenix, Ariz., and Daniel of Carmel; two daughters, Deborah Lambert of Houston, Texas, and Thais Skondin of Carmel; a sister, Thais Fay of Redwood City; his father, Alexander Skondin of Burlingame; and eight grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at El Estero Chapel of the Mission Mortuary on Oct. 15 with burial in El Carmelo Cemetary.

Learn how to become a 'Big Buddy'

The Buddy Program of the Monterey Peninsula, an agency that matches adult companions with children from single parent families, will conduct orientations the second Monday of every month. Orientations take place 7 to 9 p.m. at the Monterey Youth Center on Pearl Street (next to Dennis the Menace Park).

This is an opportunity for those interested in volunteering with the Buddy Program to learn more about the roles, responsibilities and rewards of being a "Big Buddy." For details, call 649-0276.

Knowledge of CPR could save lives

More than 70 percent of all CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) rescues occur in the home on an individual known by the rescuer.

Statistics show that more than 650,000 people in the United States died from heart attacks in 1986 and that heart disease is the leading cause of death in Monterey County.

On the other hand CPR saves more than 250 lives a day; the more people that know CPR, the more lives that can be saved.

Classes are held at the Carmel Red Cross house at Eighth and Dolores. Classes include demonstrations and teaching of the Heimlich maneuver. Cost is $20 for the eight-hour class. A certificate will be presented upon completion.

For more information call the Red Cross at 624-6921.

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

Bless our elected leaders

From the Oct. 28, 1982
Carmel Pine Cone

Many years ago Reader's Digest published a prayer by a Rev. Levi Powers D.D. that "startled Gloucester." Since the Reader's Digest has condensed the Bible, I do not apologize for condensing Dr. Power's Prayer.

"We pray for all voters. There are some too lazy to vote but not to lazy to complain and grumble. Bless them."

"We pray for all taxpayers who want good streets, schools, fire and police protection but who want others to pay for them . We pray for those who believe that all laws should be enforced except the laws they do not like."

"Bless businessmen, politicians, ministers of religion, newspaper editors who take the easy way out. Bless them Lord. Perhaps you should let them go to hell where they belong, but you know best."

"Bless our elected leaders because there are many good ones. Help them Lord to plan and act with honesty, bravery and efficiency for the good of all. Are we asking for too much, Oh Lord? Say not so! Amen."

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

As many as 10 to 20 percent of people over 65 suffer from clinical depression, but few seek help or know that the condition is treatable. "Many don't even know they're depressed," says Dr. George Neiderehe, of the National Institute of Mental Health. Prolonged depression affects appetite, sleep, and energy and can damage the immune system. Sometimes a physical examination indicates that depression-like symptoms actually are caused by health problems, or by medications for heart conditions or hypertension.

On the second Friday of every month, eight Philadelphia-area women drop everything to get together and celebrate their long-standing close friendship. That friendship dates back to 1939 when they are juniors or seniors at Kensington High School, and formed a sorority they named Sigma Delta Phi — for "Sincere and Devoted Friends." The secret of their lasting friendship? "We like each other," they explain. And they don't engage in catty gossip.

"THE OHLONE DEER Hunter" is among the illustrations by Fredric Hobbs featured in The Spirit of the Monterey Coast. A book-signing and reception for Hobbs and research collaborator Deborah Johansen will take place Sunday, Oct. 28 at the Thunderbird Bookshop in the Barnyard.

New book chronicles impact of coastal land on its people

By ANNE PAPINEAU

A COOPERATIVE project 10 years in the making, The Spirit of the Monterey Coast is more than a local history book.

Artist and filmmaker Fredric Hobbs collaborated with writer/researcher Deborah Johansen to produce this newly published volume. Illustrated with both historical photographs and Hobbs' drawings, The Spirit of the Monterey Coast examines the impact of this land on the human psyche.

"This book was inspired through an artist's eye," explained Johansen, who makes her home in Carmel Valley. "It chronicles how the lay of the land inspired the artists, writers and philosophers who chose to live here."

Readers of The Spirit of the Monterey Coast encounter 400 years of Central California history, beginning with the Ohlone peoples. They then proceed to the time of Junipero Serra; the Spanish period of "dolce far niente," or "sweet idleess;" to the eras of land czars and Carmel's bohemian and artistic colonies.

"I think it's an inspirational history," Johansen added. "It documents the impact of the land on an artist, similar to the style of writers like Annie Dillard, Robert Finch, John McPhee and Henry Miller."

The collaborators have both felt the influence of the Central Coast. Hobbs is a resident of San Francisco, where he maintains his studio. He is a painter, sculptor, filmmaker and TV director/writer, who recently completed a segment featuring the artists of Taiwan as part of a national PBS special titled "Taiwan: The Other China." A former Carmel resident, Hobbs at one time taught art and tennis at Robert Louis Stevenson School in Pebble Beach.

Johansen is a freelance writer whose writing has appeared in several books, including Big Sur Women, Eat Your House, Overland Through Asia and Untitled. She is a board member of the Big Sur Historical Society.

Of their collaboration, she said, "We worked very well on it together. We would do the research together, not only in libraries, but talking to the descendants of those people, and the curators of collections.

"If we went to interview, we'd do it together. A lot of times when talking to a subject, there was a certain aspect of questioning that

ARTS & LEISURE

JAZZ TIDES

By John Detro

Commitment

MONTEREY BEACH Hotel's leadership today leaves no room for doubt regarding goal and musical preference. "It's our commitment," says General Manager Fred Mayo, "to become the jazz hub on this peninsula."

These words reflect the personal stance of hotel owner Ted Richter. They come at a time when the Sheraton's Monterey Bay Club evidences cutbacks in jazz outlay.

"We'll be remodeling with enthusiasm," Fred continues. "This includes the right sounds. As (dining room) space expands, live jazz will move there. The view (of night bay, surf, coastal curve, lights) will be enhanced by this music. After dinner upstairs—jazz and dancing."

The quartet fronted by drummer Bill LePine plays Wednesday through Saturday evenings in the lobby lounge (formerly Captain Hook's and now called Sandals). A veteran hotel bandleader, Bill says: "Our contract states most adamantly that we must play acoustic jazz. No 'easy listening' lightweight approach. The real article—and that's fine with us."

Bill and reedman John Cortes act as cornerstones. By design, the piano and bass slots showcase various pros. "There's such a number of fine players," says the highly articulate Bill, "that we'll feature top people from Palo Alto and San Jose as well as Santa Cruz and Monterey."

Pianists mentioned: Biff Smith, John Donaldson, Dasher (David Kempton), Rich Turnoy, Joe Indences. On bass: Ian Fugate, Dave Suggs, Stuart Zimny, Dennis Murphy. The unit likes lots of ballads, often kicking into double time. Dancers stay with the tempo shifts and look to be having big fun. Also—Jobim things, meaty blues, pure bebop, Horace Silver funk. Requests get handled quickly and without the ill-hidden surliness seen on some other sets.

"The jazz policy's stable," says Fred Mayo. "It's the decision made by Ted Richter himself. He has good taste."

THE MOST IMPORTANT things deserve some verbal reserve. Carefully, then.

Carol's back home. Born on this Monterey Peninsula, the late jazz vocalist Carol Mildon must be called my favorite person in the universe. She died some years ago at Las Vegas. I visited her burial place there and thought it desolate. (I dread anything that might resemble self-dramatization—the story belongs to her and to those who supported subsequent steps. Upfront I mean her writer brother Jim, Jim's wise wife Marie, their daughter Laura. Jim and Marie attended Monterey Peninsula College and once were journalists hereabouts. They're Reno residents today.)

I had no legal rights. It fairly blew my mind when Jim and Marie agreed, over dinner at the Monterey Sheraton this past summer, that bringing Carol home was a good idea. The process has strict rules. There followed much gut-grinding detective work, since someone needed as a key signatory had not been heard from in a long long time. Without Jim's dedicated help and steady common sense, the final result never would have occurred.

At points it felt as though we'd undertaken fool's labors. Blind alley after blind alley. Then—the miracle. One tip out of nowhere put us on the right track. I'll say without shame that only the memory of this radiant and talented woman—the fact of her palpable goodness—kept me going ahead. Finally, all the permits were signed by all the necessary people. Professionals handled the logistics without hitch or stammer.

Certain members of the local jazz scene offered encouragement when my impatience said the search and the waiting were too hard. I treasure, for just one example, the wisdom and compassion shared by broadcaster Ken Haun of KRML Jazz Radio.

She came home via commercial air carrier one recent night (10/10). Reburial happened the following Friday at Monterey City Cemetery. Clear, blue, shiny, bird-packed noon. Carol always liked yellow roses; some were there. We're not talking glum grisly stuff, but affirmation—how one lovely person reclaims her place in community consciousness. (A waitress at Burly Bill's saw, some mornings later, that I had a yellow rose beside coffee cup. She said with the nicest smile: "I bet I know where you're going with that." Cemetery crew chief John Farrelly and Forrest Halstead of Mission Mortuary were gentle and vastly competent throughout. Fine men.)

Carol lived here for quite some while and made friends wherever she went. As far as I can tell, there was no local obit. Jim and my editor agreed with yours truly that this item would not be out of order. It's about her and her homecoming—and about the unblunted love she inspired. Headstones take weeks. Carol's has been ordered. It says:

SOFT AS A PIPER—
THE SINGER SINGING STILL

WRITER GROVER SALES dropped an attention-grabbing fact into his valuable book entitled Jazz—America's Classical Music. When critic Leonard Feather polled 120 top jazz musicians in 1956, nearly half named Frank Sinatra their favorite male singer.

Sinatra's intelligent incorporation of and respect for the jazz idiom never faded. The man's personal life sparked controversy from time to time; it's beyond argument that he has achieved an amazing body of work. (The test of greatness comes when any singer's pipes grow older and older. Listen again to the way in which Frank went for it all on New York, New York. This's courage.)

FAMILIAR FACE—Frank Sinatra has signed an exclusive two-year contract with the Riviera Hotel and Casino of Las Vegas. See jazz column for details.

Riveria Hotel and Casino in Las Vegas notes through Sam Distefano (vice president for entertainment) that the spread has signed Sinatra to an exclusive two-year contract. The pact covers 1991 and '92—plus three New Year's Eve performances starting this year (12/31). Site of the 1990 celebration: the Riviera's 3200-seat Superstar Theater.

SIGHT BITES: This says something about the world in which jazz battles toward constant clarification and growth. Reuter News Agency reports that a British satellite TV station plans "a comedy series on the home life of Adolf Hitler, his lover Eva Braun, and their Jewish neighbors."

ON STAGE

The Outer Zone

The Big Sur Players have chosen for their next venture four one-act plays for a trip into The Outer Zone.

The evening's drama will be offered up by "Wildman" and will include works of Woody Allen and John Patrick Shanley.

Opening night is Friday, Oct. 26 at the Big Sur Grange Hall. The show will be repeated at 8 p.m. Saturday and 3 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 27-28.

A dinner-show is slated Nov. 6-8. Dinner will be served at 7 p.m. at the Big Sur River Inn and The Outer Zone follows at 8:30 each evening.

Included in the cast are Big Sur residents Kim Candler, Jeffrey Downs, Lee Ergovich, Jim Fuller, Jennifer Green, Mark Marron, J. Perham Slate and Lisa Worthey.

The plays are directed by Kim Candler, J. Perham Slate and Jeremy Slate.

For more information, call 373-7713 or 625-4211.

The Fantasticks

Santa Catalina Upper School drama students will present two performances of The Fantasticks. Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursday and 1 p.m. Friday, Oct. 25-26, in the school's Performing Arts Center. Admission is free.

In the eight-character musical, two neighboring fathers engage in various deceptions to encourage their children, Luisa and Matt, to fall in love. The lovers quarrel after learning of their fathers' tricks, and Matt goes off to see the world. After a number of degrading experiences, he returns home to Luisa's waiting arms. Songs from the show include "Try to Remember," "Soon It's Gonna Rain" and "Plant a Radish."

The Fantasticks, which opened in May 1960 at the Sullivan Street Playhouse in Greenwich Village, became the longest-running New York stage production. The music is by Harvey Schmidt; the book and lyrics are by Tom Jones. The Santa Catalina School student production will be directed by Conrad Selvig.

Wuthering Heights

The Staff Players Repertory Company opens its 1990-91 season with an original adaptation of of Emily Bronte's Wuthering Heights. This turbulent and violent tale of love and implacable hatred has fascinated readers for more than 150 years.

Wuthering Heights plays through Nov. 17 at the Indoor Forest Theater, Mountain View and Santa Rita, in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays. In addition, Sunday matinees are set at 2:30 p.m. on Oct. 28, Nov. 4 and 11.

The cast includes Gail Higginbothom as Cathy, Kevin Caston as Heathcliff, Norman Stottmeister as Edgar Linton, Suzanne Crain as Isabella, Loel Shuler as Ellen and Ellis Allbee as Joseph.

Tickets are $9 for adults and $7 for students. For reservations, call 624-1531.

Deathtrap

The Monterey Peninsula College Theatre Company presents Ira Levin's comic thriller, Deathtrap, on the MPC main stage.

Performances are set at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 2 p.m. Sundays through Nov. 4.

Deathtrap reveals the devious schemes of a once-successful playwright who is prepared to go to any lengths to improve his fortunes. Levine provides the audience with twists and turns and sudden shocks. Suspense mounts steadily as the plot thickens.

Nick Zanides directs a cast that features Jerry Connelly as the writer, Sidney; Denise Clifford as his wife, Myra; Craig Schow as Clifford, a former student; Florence Larsen as the psychic, Helga, and Robert J. Berman as Inspector Porter Milgrim.

Working behind the scenes are Patrick McEvoy, scenic design; D. Thomas Beck, lighting, and Constance Gamiere, costuming.

Cheerleaders

KEVIN HANSTICK and Jim Sutty appear underwhelmed in the GroveMont Theater production of Tom Foolery.

Tickets are $12 general; $9 for students, military and senior citizens, and $6 for children 12 and younger.

For reservations, call Center Stage Ticketing, 649-5561, or the MPC box office, 646-4213.

Voice of the Prairie

The Robert Louis Stevenson Players present the Monterey Peninsula premiere of John Olive's award-winning play, Voice of the Prairie. Set in the prairie of 1895 to 1923, the play follows two young people: a girl who is blind and an orphaned Irish boy, as they roam the prairie in search of an American identity.

The play is staged at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Oct. 26-27 in Keck Auditorium on the Robert Louis Stevenson campus, Pebble Beach. There is an admission charge.

For further information, call 624-1257, ext. 338.

Tom Foolery

The words, music and lyrics of Tom Lehrer are celebrated in Tom Foolery, which will conclude its run at the GroveMont Theater Arts Center.

The evening includes performances of such Lehrer classics as "Vatican Rag," "Poisoning Pigeons in the Park" and "I Got It from Agnes." Stephen Moorer directs, and the cast includes Kelley Alexander, Eleanor Wylde and Kevin Hanstick. Musical director is Barbara Souza.

Final performances of Tom Foolery are set at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday and 7 p.m. Sunday until Oct. 28.

Thursday and Sunday admission to Tom Foolery is $8.50 general and $7 for students, senior citizens and the military. Admission on Friday and Saturday is $1 more.

The GroveMont Theater Arts Center is at 320 Hoffman (at Lighthouse) in New Monterey. For reservations call 649-6852. For advance tickets, call Center Stage Ticketing, 649-5561.

Aesop and the Brothers Grimm

An original musical by Barney Hulse, Aesop and the Brothers Grimm, closes this weekend at The Wharf Theatre in Monterey. Designed for family enjoyment, the musical teaches about and parodies the famed fables.

Hulse composed the music, while the script is the collaborative effort of several Monterey Peninsulans, including Renata Yundt, George Larsen, Cassy Reed and the summer company of the Wharf Theatre.

Curtain is at 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday and at 5:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 26-28. The Wharf Theatre is located on Wharf No. 1 in Monterey.

Tickets are $10 for adults, $5 for youths under 19 and $8 for persons in groups of 16 or more. For information or reservations, call 372-1373.

The Drunkard

The wages of drink are outlined in The Drunkard, when a totally respectable Edward Middleton becomes downtrodden after being tempted with drink. Of course, as in all good melodramas, all ends well with Edward back in the loving arms of his family. The title role is played by Kurt Menke.

California's First Theatre is the setting for The Drunkard. The theater, the oldest in the state, is located at the corner of Scott and Pacific streets in historic downtown Monterey.

Seating is at 7:30 p.m. for the 8 p.m. curtain on Fridays and Saturdays.

Tickets are $7 for adults, $5.50 for seniors and teens and $4.50 for subteens. The theater box office is open 1 to 8 p.m. Wednesdays through Saturdays.

For tickets or information, call 375-4916 or 649-5561.

Harmonic convergence of barbershoppers set at Sunset

THE MONTEREY CHAPTER of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America, Inc., will again take the stage of Carmel's Sunset Theater at 8:p.m. on Saturday evening, Oct. 27, to present its annual concert of barbershop harmony.

"We're bringing some outstanding quartet entertainment to the Peninsula to help us present 'Look Out, World,' our 35th annual production," says Don Sprouse, general chairman of this year's show. Bank Street, three-time international medalists, and the Mixed Metafour will join the Cypressaires for this evening of "chordiality."

The local chapter is one of nearly 800 throughout the United States, Canada, Great Britain, Ireland, Australia, New Zealand and the Scandanavian countries formed to sustain and preserve an American tradition – singing in the barbershop singing style. Today it is the largest fraternity of singers in the world with more than 38,000 members. The Monterey Chapter was founded in 1956 and boasts over 40 members from all walks of life.

Besides singing for fun, the Cypressaires help raise funds for the Institute of Logopedics in Wichita, Kansas, a center for correcting language handicaps. Barbershoppers have donated thousands of hours of time and more than $400,000 annually to support the institute.

Tickets to Saturday evening's show are being sold at Monterey's Center Stage Ticketing, phone 649-5561. Remaining tickets will be available at the Sunset Theater box office, beginning one hour prior to the show.

English pianist Moura Lympany stars in Keyboard Artist recital

BRITISH PIANIST Moura Lympany will open the new season of recitals presented in Carmel by the Keyboard Artist Series. Her recital, to begin at 4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 28, is scheduled to include Chopin's Twenty-four Preludes, Op. 28; Schumann's Symphonic Etudes and two major works by Debussy, Reflets dans l'eau and L'isle joyeuse. Setting is the Sunset Theater, San Carlos at Ninth, Carmel.

After a recent performance in London the Times said "Few musicians so totally command every aspect of performance, from first appearance to final exit, with such easy grace."

Lympany, who will be 75 on her next birthday, has had a career of 60 years on the concert stage and her recital in Carmel two years ago was one of the highlights of the season.

Born in Cornwall, Moura Lympany made her debut at the age of 12, playing Mendelssohn's Piano Concerto No. 1 in Harrogate. At 13 she won a scholarship to the Royal Academy of Music. At 15, laden with prizes and gold medals, she appeared at the Queen's Hall playing the Grieg Concerto under the baton of Sir Henry Wood, with whom she made her debut at the Royal Albert Hall five years later.

Lympany has made many recordings, among them the first complete recording of the Rachmaninoff Preludes, soon to be reissued on CD. She gave the first performance outside the Soviet Union of the Khachaturian Piano Concerto at a concert of new Russian music at Queen's Hall, and later repeated the performance at the Royal Albert Hall with Khachaturian himself conducting.

A few seasons subscriptions are still available by calling Keyboard Artist Series at 624-7971. Single tickets for the Lympany recital are priced from $14 to $20 and can be obtained by calling Center Stage Ticketing in downtown Monterey at 649-5561 or purchased at the Sunset Center box office on the afternoon of the performance.

A PROGRAM of works by Chopin, Schumann and Debussy is scheduled when Moura Lympany opens the 1990-91 season of recitals presented by the Keyboard Artist Series. Her recital will begin at 4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 28 in Sunset Theater, San Carlos at Ninth, Carmel. For advance tickets, call 649-5561.

Theater organist accompanies 'Phantom' film screening

A SCREENING of the 1925 silent horror classic, The Phantom of the Opera, will be accompanied live by noted theater organist Gaylord Carter as the first offering of the new Monarch Organ Concert Series. The concert is presented, appropriately, on Halloween. Showtime is 8 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 31 at the First United Methodist Church, Sunset at 17 Mile Drive, Pacific Grove.

Carter was 16 when he talked his way into the neighborhood movie houses and got a job playing the piano accompaniment for the films. In fact he was playing a photoplayer, a piano with a few organ pipes added and an odd assortment of traps and percussion. The films all had music cue sheets indicating what kind of pictures they were and suggesting the music to be used. Still, the first time through each night was a rehearsal.

With seven movies a week a player would be quite used to improvising music to fit any situation. Carter played in several neighborhood houses and then in 1926, Harold Lloyd heard him and recommended him to the management of the Million Dollar Theater in downtown L.A. The Million Dollar was a leading presentation house. The movie that Carter first played for there was The Temptress, starring Greta Garbo.

Carter stayed in the movie houses until the screen found its voice. The transition to sound came in 1929-30. Gaylord stayed on for a while playing organ solos with the console rising majestically from the pit and in some theaters turning around all at the same time! In the mid-'30s Gaylord went into radio and for seven years played the theme of the famous Amos 'n Andy Show. In 1942 he joined the Navy and for nearly five years worked in the recreational part of military life.

In 1959 a friend of Carter's, Jim Day, got hold of a print of The Mark of Zorro, starring Douglas Fairbanks Sr., and the idea of Flicker Fingers Presentations was born.

Offering authentic organ accompaniment to silent movies caught on with the public and Carter has been touring the United States and several foreign countries. He has appeared in more than 100 cities in theaters, schools, colleges, auditoriums – in fact any place that has an organ or can have one moved in.

When not on tour, Carter is busy scoring and recording his music for silent films. These are seen on TV and in theaters and can be had on films that people buy for use in their own homes. In this way this unusual musical art form will be preserved.

A reception is planned following the program so that the audience can meet Gaylord Carter. For tickets, call Center Stage Ticketing at 649-5561. Tickets are $8 or $6 for senior citizens, students and the military.

GAYLORD CARTER, who has accompanied silent films on theater organ since the 1920s, will perform during a Halloween screening of Lon Chaney's 1925 horror classic, The Phanton of the Opera. The performance, opening offering of the new Monarch Organ Concert Series season, begins at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 31 in the First United Methodist Church, Sunset and 17 Mile Drive, Pacific Grove.

Computer authority autographs new book

Guy Kawasaki, director of software product management at Apple Computer, will sign his national bestseller, The Macintosh Way: The Art of Guerrilla Management from 4 to 6 p.m., Friday, Oct. 26 in the Thunderbird Bookshop. Wine and hors d'oeuvres will be served.

The Macintosh Way is Kawasaki's vision of "doing the right thing and doing things right" – the simple philosophy that leads to success in business. "Although The Macintosh Way has been praised for its insider expose of the way things used to work at Apple Computer, that's really the short view of this remarkable book. The author...lays out his vision for doing business, reports The Chicago Sun Times.

Kawasaki is called the "high priest" of Macintosh technology but has written about many computer products, marketing and customer service as the hallmarks of great companies.

The Thunderbird is located in The Barnyard off Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road.

MUSIC CORNER

By Nathalie Plotkin

Enjoyably polished chamber season opener

AS AN AUSPICIOUS introduction to its 1990-91 season, the Chamber Music Society of the Monterey Peninsula featured a return engagement of the Cleveland String Quartet. It was a stimulating, enjoyably polished evening of music that was offered to a large audience Thursday evening in Carmel's Sunset Theater.

The Cleveland Quartet, now entering its 22nd year of existence, has, over this period, undergone several personnel changes, but still maintains its musical character and its well deserved reputation as a seasoned professional ensemble, skilled in every aspect of the art of chamber music playing. First violinist William Preucil, the newest member, is an excellent musician and a fine performer who has, in the past year become an integral part of the overall picture. Violist James Dunham, also a relatively recent arrival, is another high quality replacement. Second violinist Peter Salaff and cellist Paul Katz are the anchoring founding members of the group.

The opening work was a fine choice. It was vintage late Haydn, the "Quartet in D Major" op. 76, no. 5. The first movement began with gentle, songful tone and then ran through many quicksilver changes in the variations. The spontaneity and freshness of the playing style was actually the keynote and the highlight of the evening's music making. The second movement, a justly treasured Largo, was beautifully intoned. The instrumental lines were pure and clean and the ensemble was very close. The dynamic control, the delicate coordination and the blending of tone couldn't have been finer.

The Minuet had a rich sound, laying as it does in the middle of the instruments' ranges. The ghostly sounding cello line in the Trio was a fine contrast. The joyous Presto finale was played with sparkling deftness and expert synchronization.

As the required musical change of pace, Stephen Paulus' "Quartessence," which only had its premiere on Oct. 5th, was presented. It is a relatively brief work in five movements and the title comes from the widely held belief that a string quartet is one of the supreme and most rarefied of music making efforts. The movements have expressive titles, such as "In a Frenzy," which was fast moving and very busy sounding. "With Resignation" was meditative in a modern, yet somehow operatic vein and so it went with the rest of the composition. The music had definite interest and obviously challenged the players, even though the string writing was sympathetic and understanding of the instruments' technique. It was artistically and tastefully handled and offered little outrage to this listener's ear. A second hearing would make for better awareness of the musical content. Once wasn't enough (although some might disagree with me).

After the intermission, the Beethoven "Quartet in F Major" op. 59, no. 1 (a change made to give better balance to the program) was played with vibrancy and a definite sense of personal involvement. There certainly was not an impression of being a "studied" performance. The quartet performed with fluidity and some urgency and the music remained vital, well proportioned and in proper balance.

The Scherzo was given playfully spirited dialogues and the wit and cleverness of the construction was underlined. The Adagio is another great slow movement of the quartet literature and it too was beautifully expounded. The ensemble breathed as one in the phrasing and the cello, who was the main voice, sang its music with a mellow, refined tone and deep empathy.

This led immediately into the "Theme Russe," a prancing allegro which concluded the work with jaunty high spirits and very swiftly moving fingers and bows. The playing was brilliant, bringing the evening to a triumphant close.

wouldn't occur to Fredric, so we helped each other," she explained.

The team members edited each other's work.

"He asked me what I was most interested in, so I wrote the section on Mary Austin and George Sterling. Mary Austin influenced me very heavily. When we researched that part of the book, the historical annex at Harrison Memorial Library had not yet been separated. It's nice to see the collection is now isolated."

Hobbs' background as a filmmaker influenced the construction of The Spirit of the Monterey Coast.

"He saw the flow of the book cinematically," Johansen observed. "He designed the flow of the text, drawings and photographs. I believe the design is as important as the content."

The original title of the book was An American Paradise. But according to Johansen, "I can truly say my first winter spent living in Big Sur was the flip side of an American paradise.

"I moved into a house in Palo Calorado Canyon in 1982. I was in the winter storm of '82-'83 and was trapped in the canyon. The road washed out. We lost Highway 1 to the south for a year and a month," she recalled.

The book represents a 10-year project for author and researcher, and Johansen said she is grateful to see it at last "between two covers."

"It was interesting for me to work on. I'm a born and bred Yankee, and I was shamefully unaware of California history, which is a tremendous story."

The Spirit of the Monterey Coast is published by Tioga Publishing Co. of Palo Alto.

A booksigning and reception for Fredric Hobbs and Deborah Johansen will take place 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 28 at the Thunderbird Bookshop in the Barnyard, Carmel.

Hank Ketcham to sign his autobiography at Thunderbird

Cartoonist and peninsula resident Hank Ketcham will attend a party in honor of his new book, The Merchant of Dennis, 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. on Monday, Oct. 29 at the Thunderbird Bookshop.

The Merchant of Dennis is Hank Ketcham's autobiography featuring a "portrait" of his family that continues up to his current life with Dennis. New illustrations of Dennis the Menace also highlight the book.

Dennis was born in Carmel in 1951 and has been 5 years old ever since. He has shown the child's-eye-view of life to readers in more than 1,200 publications worldwide for 36 years. Ketcham has written more than 50 books of Dennis cartoons.

He left the University of Washington to join the Walter Lantz animation studio and later moved to the Walt Disney Studios. His work for Disney included Pinocchio and Fantasia. He became a successful freelance cartoonist during which time, inspired by his real-life son, the original Dennis, the comic strip was created. In its first year of publication Ketcham won the Reuben award for Cartoon of the Year, and he has since won several awards for service to the humor industry.

Locally, Ketcham is appreciated for his design of Dennis the Menace Playground in Monterey and his continuous charitable service in the community.

The Thunderbird Bookshop is located in The Barnyard off highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road. For more information call 624-8886.

HANK KETCHAM will be the guest of honor at the Thunderbird Bookshop in The Barnyard, Carmel. New illustrations of Dennis the Menace highlight his latest book, The Merchant of Dennis.

Jazz Tides...

Kuumbwa Jazz Center offers influential critic Dan Morgenstern (he heads up Rutgers Institute of Jazz Studies) on Friday night (10/26). It's part of the venue's 15th anniversary series and an Ellington tribute with a concert of Duke compositions by East Bay Toodle-oo Big Band. Leader: San Francisco area pianist John Marabuto. Costs $10 per; call 1-427-2227 for reservations and start time.

Kuumbwa's Monday night bill (10/29)—Houston Person on tenor and vocalist Etta Jones. Blues adepts—two of the best. At $12 apiece; eight o'clock kick; Center Stage Ticketing.

Monterey Bay Club—Dave Clay Duo (10/25), Roger Eddy (10/26-27), Alan Berman (10/28), Monday Night Football (10/29), Jack and Ed Show (10/30), Halloween Spooky Surprise costume party (10/31).

San Francisco Jazz Festival spotlights genius tenorman Joe Henderson and North Indian percussionist Zakir Hussain in a Sacred Space concert at Grace Cathedral on Sunday night (10/28). Ticketmaster. Call (415) 864-5449 for the full and impressive slate.

Don't forget that Miles Davis Project series broadcast by KUSP Radio (88.9FM) at nine o'clock Thursday evenings. Rich history told by jazz masters.

Check out jazz vocalist Bill Allison and friends on Wednesday nights at Pablo's in The Barnyard. Pianist Ace Hill continues weekends at Doubletree Lounge. Bassist Norm Ross hosts those jams at The Firehouse (Thursday and Saturday nights). Monday evenings, Monterey Peninsula Jazz Orchestra cooks at Mission Ranch Barn. Antoine's of Capitola boasts live blues piano nightly.

Monterey Jazz Festival Education Committee meets on Thursday night (10/25) to discuss the proposed series which would let student players jam with selected pros in a club setting. The initial effort occurred earlier this month at Monterey Bay Club (10/14) and committeeman Bill Jackson will share his impressions of that gathering with other members. Probably up for discussion: whether to seek alternative sites since the Monterey Bay Club now emphasizes big-screen football on Sunday afternoons.

Kimball's in San Francisco announces the Jimmy McGriff Quartet for early next month (11/7-10).

'The Panama Invasion: Aftermath'

IMAGES OF Panama by Eileen O'Leary are teamed with photographs of the Alaskan oil spill through Nov. 11 at the Photographic Center of the Monterey Peninsula. According to O'Leary, "As a photojournalist I am committed to effecting social change with my photographs ... these photographs have been published in newspapers, magazines and in books, in America and overseas. Many other people have seen them and I hope that they too have been moved by the plight of the innocent Panamanian people." The gallery is located in Sunset Center, San Carlos at Ninth, Carmel.

THEATER REVIEW

By Joe Guzaitis

Vengeful romantics

WUTHERING HEIGHTS is Emily Bronte's only novel and was published in 1847. (The archaic word "wuthering" refers to the unsettling noise the wind makes as it encounters obstructions, such as houses and trees). The novel actually disturbed audiences of the day thus placing it far above melodrama, which some feel it resembles. Later generations have enjoyed it immensely and many have seen the 1939 Laurence Olivier/Merle Oberon film and some more can now see Gaylord Marr's workmanlike, but a bit stiff, stage adaptation.

The first act is full of scene setting and action-packed tumult. The pious Mr. Earnshaw has brought home a guttersnipe named Heathcliff from Liverpool. He has taken pity on the lad and intends to raise the lad up in his Christian home and confer civility on him. As we might expect, Heathcliff thrives in such an environment and even makes bold to fall in love with Cathy, the young heiress of the Heights. He also gains the enmity of Cathy's brother, Hindley. Cathy's spell over him is broken, however, when he overhears Cathy say that she could not lower herself to marry him even though she is attracted to him and they have shared youthful passion among the rocky crags.

In the next act, Heathcliff disappears for three years and then returns as a man of substance. Old Mr. Earnshaw is dead, Hindley is a sot, and Heathcliff moves in and begins covering Hindley's bills with an eye toward foreclosure on the homestead. He has been brooding about Cathy, who, in his absence, has married Edgar Linton, master of Thrushcross Grange, an elegant estate nearby. Heathcliff, in turn, marries Isabella, the sister of Edgar. All settle in to a morbid quadrangle that promises to blight them all. That's all I'll tell here.

The casting is quite good. Kevin Caston's Heathcliff throws appropriate sparks as his fierce but blocked out desire is played out. Cathy's romantic recidivism is given an understated smoldering glow by Gail Higginbotham who recently gave us a superb Joan of Arc. These two characters must be right for this piece to work at all. They are. It does.

The mercurial Norman Stottmeister (also the set designer) give us a confident Edgar Linton, serene master of Thrushcross Grange. Standing on the edge of a volcano, he can but watch and feel sorrow. Suzanne Crain makes us squirm as she shows us Isabella Linton's rustic boredom driving her into the arms of Heathcliff only to become his hostage in a bizarre battle she only gradually comprehends. Craig Dunbar, who recently stole the show as the lead in One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest, plays Hindley Earnshaw. He makes us writhe in response to his alcoholic cruelty as he lashes out at all he sees.

Some supporting roles were notable. The young Heathcliff played by Nathan Cook puts us on notice that this character is someone to be reckoned with. Dr. Kenneth (who makes cottage calls!) is ably played by the sonorous Jason Bond who always looks as if he just stepped out of the 19th Century.

Scenic design was adequate to the problematic Indoor Forest Theater Stage. One wishes that the crag scenes could have been more dramatic, perhaps wraparound Ansel Adams-like wall hangings, blending with the hearthstones. Light design by Steve Disseldorp with Ingred Bartels was very good. The handsome costumes are by Loel Shuler, who also appeared on stage as the maid Ellen Dean.

Marcia Hovick directs the play as Heathclif himself would have liked: insults like slaps on the cheek, speeches that are like body blows. The overall tone was one of people caught in the grip of larger forces, being pummeled by giant hands.

Wuthering Heights plays Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings at 8; Sunday matinees on Oct. 28, Nov. 4 and Nov. 11. The Indoor Forest Theater is at Santa Rita and Mountain View in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Thriller 'Deathtrap' onstage at MPC

IRA LEVIN, that sly master of the psychological thriller, is back again with the MPC production of Deathtrap, opening this past weekend on the college's main stage.

Creator of The Stepford Wives, Rosemary's Baby and The Boys from Brazil, Levin treated local theater-goers to another taste of his unique formula of humor and terror in a recent (and quite commendable) production of Veronica's Room at the S.R.O.

CRAIG SCHOW becomes the guinea pig for a "Houdini-type" set of handcuffs, administered by Jerry Connelly in the MPC staging of Deathtrap.

Here directed by Nick Zanides and performed competently on a superb set designed by Patrick McEvoy, Deathtrap has as many real and imaginary twists and turns as Highway 1 being driven south from Carmel to Morro Bay on a dark, rain-swept night.

Sidney Bruhl (Jerry Connelly), a successful writer of thrillers enduring a protracted dry spell in his work, receives an unsolicited manuscript in the mail from a young playwright, Clifford Anderson (Craig Schow), whom Bruhl vaguely remembers meeting at an earlier writers' conference. Bruhl recognizes at once that Anderson's work is a sure-fire theatrical hit and frightens his dutiful, none-too-healthy wife Myra (Denise Clifford) by intimating he might consider committing murder for the chance to steal the young man's play and submit it to the theatrical world as his own.

Older playwright invites younger playwright to his comfortable rural home near Westpoint, Conn., and suggests he bring the only other copy of the play along so they can sit down together and discuss its merits privately. Younger playwright accepts invitation on a dark, stormy night.

Oh, oh.

That's about as much as a critic can ethically reveal of the play's action, except to say that an eccentric Dutch psychic, Helga ten Dorp (Florence Larsen) and Porter Milgrim (Robert J. Berman), Bruhl's lawyer, soon happen by and significantly contribute to Levin's already fiercely bubbling witch's brew.

I have by now experienced enough of Levin's unique magic to know that the minute a person sits down to enjoy one of his works – be it play, book or movie – he has seated himself down opposite a world class chess player. Survival dictates that the reader/theater/movie-goer must try to stay two or three moves ahead of the droll, smiling master, watching his every expression, studying every sly feint and subtle strategem. Be warned. For the price of admission, reader/theater/movie-goer has given Ira Levin carte blanche to mess around with his head.

There is lots of verbal humor to go with the chills. Discussing his current inability to write, Bruhl tells his wife, "Nothing recedes like success." When Anderson wonders why Bruhl's most recent play was not a hit, Bruhl ripostes, "Critics peeing on it might be the answer."

The single set for Deathtrap, as local play-goers have come to expect in MPC productions, is a visual treat. The converted barn that serves as Bruhl's study is airy, rustic and comfortable. The walls are lined with swords, sabers, foils, nooses, pistols, cross-bows and other tools of mayhem. This being a Levin thriller, would it be much of a surprise to see some of these eventually in action?

Jerry Connelly's Sidney Bruhl is cool and witty with just enough amoral cheerfulness to suggest he is capable of the evil deeds he contemplates. His facial expressions were fitting and he clearly knows where to find the laughs. Denise Clifford brings to the part of Myra Bruhl a great deal of stage smarts, although I found her comic reactions in general more believable than those of surprise or fear. More sustained revulsion at her husband's words and plans would have been welcome. Especially in the key I, 2 scene, her reactions are essential to the audience understanding what is going on.

Craig Schow eventually warmed to the Anderson part, especially in the action scenes. He displayed first weekend jitters during the early going, however, a common and forgivable malady. Papers in a trembling hand are a dead giveaway. The best advice is to handle them as little as possible.

Florence Larsen's Dutch psychic "wass zuberb." She moved around the set sniffing out suspended feelings like a house dog sorting out assorted aromas of a dinner being prepared. Robert J. Berman's treatment of the dry, unintentionally humorous lawyer was virtually a satirical comment on that type. All five performers gave evidence they had been meticulously directed.

Technical aspects of the show were under the overall direction of D. Thomas Beck. Properties – this was a difficult prop show – were handled by Lady Hull. Costume design by Constance Gamiere, with Hopey Folsom as costume mistress. Sound design by David Rigmaiden, Steve Lee on the sound console.

With Halloween upon us, Washington in apparent total disarray, and events in the Persian Gulf suggesting that some world leaders will never lose their archaic fascination with war, it might not be a bad time to spend an evening at the theater with Ira Levin's controlled terrors and fabricated thrills.

TOWNHOUSE IN THE SUN

A PRIVATE WORLD of beauty awaits you in this luxurious two-bedroom unit in White Oaks, a much sought-after planned unit development in Carmel Valley Village, where the warm belt begins. All rooms have restful outlooks to green lawns and shady trees, and the master bedroom has its own private garden — adding an extra dimension to its already generous space. A brand new deck off the living and dining rooms enables you to relax in the sun, or to entertain al fresco. Inside, soaring ceilings, marble fireplace, track lighting, wonderful storage, and much, much more. This unit is a joy to show — and well worth your inspection! $375,000.

HOUSE BEAUTIFUL

A COMSTOCK post-adobe home in a sunny upper Pebble Beach location, abounding in color and, above all, style. An oversized entrance hall leads on the left to a spacious living room with a peek of Point Lobos, and on the right to a cozy dining room and attractive kitchen with gleaming new appliances. The living room opens to a glass-walled solarium, its temperature controlled by a thermostat. Two charming bedrooms, both looking on to private patios, are to the rear. A pleasure to show, a treasure to own. $650,000.

ENTERTAINER'S DELIGHT

A SUPERB home in an attractive location offers you the perfect setting for entertaining as you choose — outdoors on the sun-flooded decks, or indoors with picture-window ocean views. This stylishly handcrafted home in Carmel Woods shows quality in every deatil, from the bleached hardwood floors to the vaulted ceiling in the living room. You have ocean views, not only from the living room, but also from the dining room, modern kitchen, and large master bedroom. Altogether there are three bedrooms, plus an artist's studio, and detached garage. $725,000.

SPACE GALORE

A WELL-BUILT home in Carmel Meadows, an area of fine homes on a spit of land jutting into the ocean a few minutes south of Carmel, with lots of space for you and your growing family. The convenient floor plan features big living room with fireplace, dining room, den, and kitchen, along with three bedrooms and three baths. You can enjoy the view from the house, and when you want to get close to the water, you can stroll down the seashore and inhale the bracing salt air. $595,000.

INCOME

DOWNTOWN Carmel, near the new Park branch of the library, a commercial property with four offices. Remodeled and shows well. REDUCED to $625,000.
